EAST LIVERPOOL, O., MONDAY, AUGUST 13, 1900.

TWO CENTS

OPENING OF THE FALL CAMPAIGN

Of the Young Men's Christian Association—Interesting Services.

DR. MARSHALL, IOWA, SPEAKS

Rev. Platts, Former Secretary, Also Delivers an Eloquent Address.

GLADDEN AND SWIFT PRESENT

Revs. Marshall, Swift, Gladden and Platts took part in the services at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Sunday afternoon. Prof. Laughlin conducted the song service, and this was a very pleasing feature. "Rescue the Perishing" was given as the opening selection, and the men present gave it as if they meant it, and as if they intended to lend a helping hand in the feature of saving men from drunkenness, sin and shame, in the name of the Master. Rev. Swift, of Beaver Falls, led in a touching prayer for God's blessing on the meeting. Rev. Platts read the scripture lesson, third chapter of First John. Chairman Hill made announcement that this was the first service of the fall campaign of the Y. M. C. A., that there is a great work to do in East Liverpool among young men. He stated that he had made a jaunt around the Diamond just before the meeting, inviting young men to attend the service, and that he found four young men so drunk that they could not understand his invitation and could not read the printed slips he gave them.

Rev. Marshall spoke of the young men in connection with Christianity; told of the wonderful work being done in this line in his present pastorate at Des Moines, Iowa. He told of the special efforts made directly for the saving of young men; of the fact that God has added His blessing in a powerful manner and that now there are more men than women attending the regular services.

"The man with the message." He is not easily daunted; he meets difficulties and overcomes them. McCall, when he first went to Paris, knew just about enough of the French language to say "God loves you;" and yet he filled Paris with God's message. Carey, in India, met with opposition from the natives; but he was full of the message, and God granted wonderful results and blessings. The man with the message is almost infallible; he is strong just in proportion as the Master is in his heart and life. God gave Martin Luther a message, "the just shall live by faith." The doctrines which Luther had been taught among the monks were full of wrong and error; but God opened Luther's eyes, and he walked in the light of the truth of the message; that which harmonized with the message he accepted; that which did not harmonize with it he rejected. Chief Justice John Marshall, serving on the bench in the days of George Washington, gave guidance to the law students of that day and to the students and courts even to the present day. He had no precedent on which to base his ideas of the control of a great republic; he had caught the great and fundamental truth of the rights of the individual—a government by the people.

ple and for the people; this thought controlled him and controlled Washington as well.

"You know certain men who are wonderful in their power in the Christian life; they seldom make mistakes, but seem to have an intuitive knowledge of how and when to do the right thing. They simply belong to the class known as 'the man with the message.' They have dedicated their lives to the service of God; their hearts are so filled with the light of the message that they rarely make mistakes.

"Have you heard of the 'George Republic,' situated in New York state? The projector and founder makes it the business of his life to lift up boys and girls; to rescue them from the pitfalls and snares of the great and wicked city of New York, take them out to the great farm, surround them with good influences and pure life and make them good and noble and useful citizens; outcast boys and girls transformed into noble men and women, useful and helpful members of society. George walks in the light of his God-given message.

"Such men as George get next to needy lives and hearts. It is a wonderful thing to get next to people, to get hold of the poor and the needy and hold them up, to help them and strengthen them.

"Can you fill the place of 'the man with the message' to the young men of East Liverpool? This is really my question of questions for your consideration today. Give yourself to God aright, without let or hindrance and he will give you the message in fullest power, with full directions, and you will not be easily deterred, daunted or overcome; become a willing instrument in the hands of God, and he will speak through you in word and act and life."

Rev. Platts made a brief and eloquent address, taking as his topic the physical, mental and spiritual characteristics of a true Christian manhood.

Rev. Gladden pronounced the benediction. Services on Sunday afternoon next, at 4 o'clock. You will be very welcome.

The projector and founder makes it the business of his life to lift up boys and girls; to rescue them from the pitfalls and snares of the great and wicked city of New York, take them out to the great farm, surround them with good influences and pure life and make them good and noble and useful citizens; outcast boys and girls transformed into noble men and women, useful and helpful members of society. George walks in the light of his God-given message.

"Such men as George get next to needy lives and hearts. It is a wonderful thing to get next to people, to get hold of the poor and the needy and hold them up, to help them and strengthen them.

"Can you fill the place of 'the man with the message' to the young men of East Liverpool? This is really my question of questions for your consideration today. Give yourself to God aright, without let or hindrance and he will give you the message in fullest power, with full directions, and you will not be easily deterred, daunted or overcome; become a willing instrument in the hands of God, and he will speak through you in word and act and life."

Rev. Platts made a brief and eloquent address, taking as his topic the physical, mental and spiritual characteristics of a true Christian manhood.

Rev. Gladden pronounced the benediction. Services on Sunday afternoon next, at 4 o'clock. You will be very welcome.

INJURIOUS CHEMICALS

Found in the Milk Furnished by the Salem Dealers—No Arrests.

Owing to the great number of complaints which were constantly pouring in upon the Salem board of health, it was ordered that the milk sold by the dealers in that city be chemically analyzed. The result of the analysis fully justified the suspicions of the complainants, as foreign substances were found in at least five samples of the milk tested.

A traveling salesman had sold to some of the dairymen a compound known as "freezaline," which, he averred, could not be detected by a chemical analysis.

The compound was used to prevent the milk from souring during hot weather. No arrests will be made, this being the first offense, unless the dealers continue to use the stuff and all have been warned.

The Condition of Trade. China, Glass and Lamps.

As the season advances there is more business doing and among other features of the market it is noticeable that jobbers are beginning to purchase more freely. Their orders are, however, for the most part to sort up stocks, which had become considerably depleted in the last few months. They are buying carefully and conservatively, and their orders are for such quantities as they think they are pretty certain to dispose of soon.

The traveling salesmen are busy on the road and are doing much by their efforts to stimulate trade. The reports from all outside points are encouraging and indicate the prospect of a large fall business.

The factories, both east and west, are in full operation and the new plants in course of construction are now being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Some of the manufacturers are reported to have orders on their books which it will take them some time to fill and all are busy on new shapes and patterns, of which there will be an unusually large variety offered the coming fall.

Rome, Aug. 13.—The Italian foreign office received a dispatch from the Italian minister in Pekin, Marquis Salvago Raggi, dated August 5, containing the following:

"Shots exchanged between the defenders of the legation and the Chinese. One killed and two wounded. We have no news of the allies since July 30. We hope they will not delay advance to Pekin."

London, Aug. 13.—The sooner we can be got out of this the better, for it is inconvenient for the Chinese government and unsafe for ourselves. This is a message received last evening from Sir Robert Hart, dated Pekin, August 5, and sent in cipher to the Chinese maritime officials in London.

FOUR KILLED IN STORM.

Nine Persons Struck by Lightning—Five May Die—Another May Be Insane if Living.

New York, Aug. 13.—In the storm which passed over this section four persons were killed in Queensboro and two others stand very little chance of recovery from the injuries they received.

New York, Aug. 13.—Nine persons who hurriedly sought shelter under some trees and bushes in the woods in the Bronx section during the storm were struck by the same flash of lightning. The persons injured were: James Brown, a Hungarian tailor, of this city, his wife and five children and Bertha Lescowitz and Bertha Silverman, neighbors of the Browns. All the injured persons were taken to the Fordham hospital. The attending physicians thought Mrs. Brown, two of her children and Bertha Silverman could not possibly live. The Silverman girl was the worst injured of all. Of Bertha Lescowitz the physicians said she would die or become insane.

Artificial Sponges.

Artificial sponges are made in Germany by treating pure cellulose with zinc chloride. The product swells in water and on drying becomes hard. But to prevent this action alkalihaloids are used. A pasty mass is thus obtained, which, being treated with rock salt, is then placed in a mold. When removed, it appears to be traversed by canals in all directions, and after having been washed in alcohol and water the sponge is ready for use.

THE GOVERNOR WILL SPEAK

Central Committee Made Arrangements to Give Him a Royal Welcome to the City.

A BRASS BAND ENGAGED

Committees Appointed and the Party to Introduce the Governor Was Selected.

EVERYBODY SHOULD TURN OUT

Governor George K. Nash will be given a hearty welcome when he arrives in the city Wednesday evening.

The Republican central committee met at city hall Saturday evening and made preparations for the affair.

William Randolph, John Rark and William Hall were selected as a committee to secure Haines' band for the occasion.

The band will not meet the governor at the train, but will play at the residence of Colonel John N. Taylor upon his arrival there.

There will be no parade, but everybody is expected to turn out and make the evening a success from every standpoint, and there is every indication that Governor Nash will be given a rousing welcome when he greets the East Liverpool people for the first time.

W. V. Blake was selected as the person to introduce the governor to the people, and Chairman Owen will look after the duty of receiving him.

INJURIOUS CHEMICALS

Found in the Milk Furnished by the Salem Dealers—No Arrests.

Owing to the great number of complaints which were constantly pouring in upon the Salem board of health, it was ordered that the milk sold by the dealers in that city be chemically analyzed. The result of the analysis fully justified the suspicions of the complainants, as foreign substances were found in at least five samples of the milk tested.

A traveling salesman had sold to some of the dairymen a compound known as "freezaline," which, he averred, could not be detected by a chemical analysis.

The compound was used to prevent the milk from souring during hot weather. No arrests will be made, this being the first offense, unless the dealers continue to use the stuff and all have been warned.

The Condition of Trade. China, Glass and Lamps.

As the season advances there is more business doing and among other features of the market it is noticeable that jobbers are beginning to purchase more freely. Their orders are, however, for the most part to sort up stocks, which had become considerably depleted in the last few months. They are buying carefully and conservatively, and their orders are for such quantities as they think they are pretty certain to dispose of soon.

The traveling salesmen are busy on the road and are doing much by their efforts to stimulate trade. The reports from all outside points are encouraging and indicate the prospect of a large fall business.

The factories, both east and west, are in full operation and the new plants in course of construction are now being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Some of the manufacturers are reported to have orders on their books which it will take them some time to fill and all are busy on new shapes and patterns, of which there will be an unusually large variety offered the coming fall.

HARRY BUXTON

Will Probably Accept the Pastorate of the Toronto Methodist Episcopal Church.

Toronto Commercial.

Rev. Harry Buxton, a resident of East Liverpool, and member of the Georgian conference, will in all probability accept the pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal church in this city, to fill the unexpired term of Rev. McClure.

A member of the church officiary stated this morning that, while the matter had not been definitely settled, there was little doubt but that Rev. Buxton would accept the appointment.

Rev. Buxton will preach at both morning and evening services tomorrow.

WM. ALLISON

Arrested Yesterday, but Was Afterward Released, Being Restored the Property.

About a week ago William Allison procured a guitar from the wife of Abe Burlingame under false representation, stating that he had been sent after it by Burlingame.

Mr. Burlingame swore out a warrant for Allison's arrest and yesterday Constable Powell took him in. Some time after the warrant was issued Allison returned the instrument and the case was dismissed by Justice McCarron.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD.

Joseph Dennis Passed Away at the Home of His Brother in Brooklyn.

Joseph Dennis, a former resident of this city, died last Thursday at the residence of his brother in Brooklyn. Deceased moved from this city to Steubenville, where he suffered a paralytic stroke, from which he never recovered.

He was well and favorably known to many of the residents here.

Rapid Progress.

More contributions to our institutions of learning have been made under the present administration than at any other period in the history of the country. Education is receiving its full share of the profits of prosperity, and education will contribute liberally to the sentiment for good government.

Tickets for the A. M. E. entertainment, to be given in the Y. M. C. A. hall on the 15th, can be procured at Bulger's and Reed's drug stores and at Orms Bros.' barber shop.

WITHIN THIRTY DAYS.

The Total Population of the United States Will Be Announced.

The government has announced that the population of the country will be known within 30 days.

Fifty-four thousand enumerators were employed in taking the census, and returns from more than half of them have been counted, the remainder being disposed of at the rate of 2,000 per day.

A great deal of trouble is being experienced with the returns from New York. Nearly all had to be sent back. This was due principally to carelessness on the part of the enumerators. In some cases the enumerator could not secure names, particularly in New York city, where many families were away.

Taking a Rest.

China, Glass and Lamps.

The Wheeling Pottery company shut down for a short time recently and made a few necessary repairs. They are now running along in their usual brisk manner.

Charles W. Franzheim, president and general manager of the three potteries, has been a very busy man for some time and is now taking a much needed rest, having gone with his family to recuperate. He will remain with them about two weeks when he will return and get into harness again. Business is fairly good with them for this season of the year.

Shaffer Going to China.

Company M, Second U. S. infantry, now stationed at Ft. Thomas, Kentucky, of which Floyd Shaffer, formerly of Salem, is a member, has been ordered to China.

The company will leave for San Francisco August 20, and embark at that port for the Orient.

They Have a Balance.

The financial statement of the Rochester school board for the year ending the first Monday in June, 1900, has been issued.

The total amount of receipts for the year was $24,953.64; expenditures $23,105.40; balance in hands of treasurer, $1,748.24.

A NEW LOCAL MAY BE FORMED

In Refusing to Co-operate
With Brotherhood.

BOTH SIDES ARE WAITING

To See What the Labor Committee
Will Do When Absent Members Return.

EX-VICE PRES. RHEAD TALKS

The Trenton True American of Saturday has the following in regard to the pottery situation in that city:

At a meeting of the hollowware pressers' local of the Brotherhood of Operative Potters, the declaration of the pressers in favor of the uniform wage scale was unanimously reaffirmed.

The pressers expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the list, as prepared by the Pittsburgh conference, claiming that it would be a great benefit to the entire pottery industry.

Nothing developed in the situation yesterday, the return of two members of the manufacturers' committee on labor being awaited before further action is taken. These absent members will be in town next Tuesday.

The Brotherhood, which is responsible for the list, is very anxious that it should go into effect and it is possible that if the jigermen persist in opposing it, a new union to include that branch of the industry will be formed.

The jigermen are now without the pale of the Brotherhood, having broken away some time ago, and formed an independent organization.

If they are not willing to work in cooperation with the Brotherhood, which is conceded to be the representative organization of the operatives, it will then be up to the Brotherhood to take some drastic course.

Henry Rhead, late vice president of the Brotherhood, yesterday sent a request to the True American to have an impression resulting from his remarks before the kilnmen, corrected.

The remarks of Mr. Rhead were published in yesterday's issue, and among other things he was reported as saying that some "good union men" had not paid a cent to the organization in 15 months.

In order that this might not be interpreted as a slap at the men in the union, Mr. Rhead requests that it be explained that his remarks were aimed at the non-union men.

It appears that after failure to pay dues for three months, the constitution of the union provides that members shall be dropped. While the rule is not rigidly enforced, there are some men who fail to pay dues for a year or more, but yet claim to be union men.

"My remarks," says Mr. Rhead, "were intended for men who are careless and ignore the union, but like to have its benefits. These are generally the first men to call on the union in times of trouble."

TRENTON JIGGERMEN

Hold a Meeting and Decide to Admit
All Branches of the Trade to Their Union.

Trenton Potters' Journal.

Readers of the Journal will remember that we said there was a movement on foot among many kilnmen to form a separate organization, in case the uniform list should receive official sanction.

Straws tell which way the wind is blowing, as the following clearly demonstrates:

The jigermen and dishmakers'

union No. 1 held their usual weekly meeting on Friday evening, and disposed of considerable routine and much important new business. Recently there has been many applications for membership, and among the lot were those from other branches of the industry.

Finally the meeting decided to throw open the charter for the reception of all branches of the general ware industry, including kilnmen.

This step was taken on account of the great dissatisfaction in other branches of the trade regarding the N. B. O. P. It will be noted that the jigermen and dishmakers' local union now embraces the turners and handlers branches, and is therefore what is known as a mixed local.

A Uniform Size List.

Trenton Potter's Journal.

Talking about the uniform list a gentleman close to the manufacturers said yesterday that in his opinion it was a matter of much greater importance to introduce a scale to fix a uniform limit for sizes, than to devote so much energy to establish a uniform wage scale.

He said that in Beaver Falls, Pa., for instance, they make a plate that is fully a size bigger than the corresponding size made in Trenton. The same is true in not a few other lines of goods. The operatives get nothing extra for that extra labor, and it was a reduction. There was a field for missionary labor, much more productive of good to all concerned.

How Would This Work?

An exchange asserts that the ancient Assyrians would take contractors who laid poor pavements and permit indignant citizens to hurl the defective portions of their work at them. While the archaeological authority for this is hazy, there is no doubt that such simple and straightforward measures secured for the ancients pavements which lasted longer than necessary.

Foresters' Picnic.

The Foresters of northeastern Ohio will hold a picnic at Mill Creek Park, Youngstown, on August 18.

Many prominent officers of the order will make addresses.

FIRM REPLY TO CHINA

Offer of Li's Mediation Met by Reiterated Demands.

BRAVE MESSAGE FROM CONGER.

Expressed His Ability to Hold Out Until General Chaffee Should Come to His
to Negotiate Peace With the Powers.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Secretary Adeé, by direction of President McKinley, presented to Minister Wu for transmission to his government the reply of the United States to the imperial edict appointing Li Hung Chang envoy to negotiate with the powers for a cessation of hostilities.

In effect it was a reiteration of the demands previously made by the United States upon China, coupled with a vigorous intimation that no negotiations will be entered into until the Chinese government shall have complied with those demands.

As transmitted to the imperial government by the acting secretary of state through Minister Wu, the demands, in brief, were:

That the Chinese government give assurance that the foreign ministers are alive, and if so, in what condition.

That the ministers be placed in free communication with their governments, firing upon the legations to cease, and all dangers to their lives and liberty be removed.

That the imperial authorities place themselves in communication with the relief expedition, so that the legations may be liberated, foreigners protected and order restored.

Until these demands have been acceded to, it is regarded as highly improbable that the government of the United States or any of the European governments, all of which have made practically the same demands upon China, will consent to a cessation of hostile demonstrations, which are being conducted, at least so far as this government is concerned, with the sole purpose of succoring the besieged legations in the Chinese capital.

The above is respectfully copied for transmission to your excellency to be communicated to the secretary of state for his excellency's information.

This matter, with the details of Minister Wu's call at the state department, was transmitted to the president.

published in yesterday's issue, and among other things he was reported as saying that some "good union men"
had not paid a cent to the organization
in 15 months.

In order that this might not be interpreted as a slap at the men in the union, Mr. Rhead requests that it be explained that his remarks were aimed at the non-union men.

It appears that after failure to pay dues for three months, the constitution of the union provides that members shall be dropped. While the rule is not rigidly enforced, there are some men who fail to pay dues for a year or more, but yet claim to be union men.

"My remarks," says Mr. Rhead,
"were intended for men who are careless and ignore the union, but like to have its benefits. These are generally the first men to call on the union in times of trouble."

TRENTON JIGGERMEN

Hold a Meeting and Decide to Admit
All Branches of the Trade to
Their Union.

Trenton Potters' Journal.

Readers of the Journal will remember that we said there was a movement on foot among many kilnmen to form a separate organization, in case
the uniform list should receive official sanction.

Straws tell which way the wind is blowing, as the following clearly demonstrates:

The jigermen and dishmakers'

union No. 1 held their usual weekly meeting on Friday evening, and disposed of considerable routine and much important new business. Recently there has been many applications for membership, and among the lot were those from other branches of the industry.

Finally the meeting decided to throw open the charter for the reception of all branches of the general ware industry, including kilnmen.

This step was taken on account of the great dissatisfaction in other branches of the trade regarding the N. B. O. P. It will be noted that the jigermen and dishmakers' local union
now embraces the turners and handlers branches, and is therefore what is known as a mixed local.

A Uniform Size List.

Trenton Potter's Journal.

Talking about the uniform list a gentleman close to the manufacturers said yesterday that in his opinion it was a matter of much greater importance to introduce a scale to fix a uniform limit for sizes, than to devote so much energy to establish a uniform wage scale.

He said that in Beaver Falls, Pa., for instance, they make a plate that is fully a size bigger than the corresponding size made in Trenton. The same is true in not a few other lines of goods. The operatives get nothing extra for that extra labor, and it was a reduction. There was a field for missionary labor, much more productive
of good to all concerned.

How Would This Work?

An exchange asserts that the ancient Assyrians would take contractors who laid poor pavements and permit indignant citizens to hurl the defective portions of their work at them.
While the archaeological authority for this is hazy, there is no doubt that such simple and straightforward measures secured for the ancients pavements which lasted longer than necessary.

FIRM REPLY TO CHINA

Offer of Li's Mediation Met by Reiterated Demands.

BRAVE MESSAGE FROM CONGER.

Expressed His Ability to Hold Out Until
General Chaffee Should Come to His
to Negotiate Peace With the Powers.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Secretary
Adee, by direction of President Mc-Kinley, presented to Minister Wu for transmission to his government the reply of the United States to the imperial edict appointing Li Hung Chang
envoy to negotiate with the powers
for a cessation of hostilities.

In effect it was a reiteration of the demands previously made by the United States upon China, coupled with a vigorous intimation that no negotiations will be entered into until the Chinese government shall have complied with those demands.

As transmitted to the imperial government by the acting secretary of state through Minister Wu, the demands, in brief, were:

That the Chinese government give assurance that the foreign ministers
are alive, and if so, in what condition.

That the ministers be placed in free communication with their governments, firing upon the legations to cease, and all dangers to their lives
and liberty be removed.

That the imperial authorities place
themselves in communication with the relief expedition, so that the lega-tions may be liberated, foreigners protected and order restored.

Until these demands have been acceded to, it is regarded as highly improbable that the government of the United States or any of the European governments, all of which have made practically the same demands upon China, will consent to a cessation of hostile demonstrations, which are being conducted, at least so far as this government is concerned, with the sole purpose of succoring the besieged legationaries in the Chinese capital.

Washington, Aug. 13.—A belated message from Minister Conger, sent to the war department by General Chaffee expressed his ability to "hold on" until General Chaffee should come to his rescue. All the power of this government will be exerted to get that relief to him and other imprisoned legationaries at the earliest possible moment.

Acting Secretary Adeed made public
the following statement:

"The department of state makes public the following imperial decree
appointing Viceroy Li Hung Chang
as envoy plenipotentiary to propose a cessation of hostile demonstrations and negotiate with the powers, a copy of which was delivered by Mr. Wu to the acting secretary of state this (Sunday) morning at 10:30 o'clock.

"An imperial decree forwarded by the privy council at Pekin, under date
of the 14th day of the 7th moon, August 8, to Governor Yuan at Tsing Nan, Shantung, who transmitted it on the 17th day of the same moon (August 11)
to the taotai at Shanghai, by whom it was retransmitted to Minister Wu,
who received it on the night of the same day (August 11).

"The imperial edict, as transmitted
by the privy council, is as follows:
"In the present conflict between Chinese and foreigners there has been some misunderstanding on the part of foreign nations, and also some want
of proper management on the part of some local authorities. A clash of arms is followed by calamitous results
and causes a rupture of friendly rela-

Anti-Foreigners.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The tsung li yamen
forwarded through the Chinese minister in Paris, Yu Yeng, a message to the French government, complaining of the tardiness of the foreign ministers in Pekin in replying to the offer
to the Chinese government to conduct them under escort. The message proceeded to say that the tsung li yamen
declined to be responsible for any casualties which might follow these delays and insisted that the European governments order their representatives to leave Pekin.

To this M. Delcassee, minister of foreign affairs, sent the following reply:

"No order to depart from Pekin will be given to depart as long as the roads are unsafe. If a casualty occurs
the responsibility is with the Chinese government. Its plain duty is to protect foreign ministers more than its own.

"If it is true that the Chinese government has great difficulty in defending them and in defending itself

against rebels it should order its troops to stand aside before the allied forces. This would render free the road from Tien Tsin to the capital and would accomplish the work of protection, which is encumbered.

"The Chinese government should understand that the only means of proving the sincerity of its designs
and of limiting its responsibilities is
a cessation in the political campaign
in the obstacles in the way of such an arrangement."

A NEW LOCAL MAY BE FORMED

In Refusing to Co-operate
With Brotherhood.

BOTH SIDES ARE WAITING

To See What the Labor Committee
Will Do When Absent Members Return.

EX-VICE PRES. RHEAD TALKS

The Trenton True American of Saturday has the following in regard to the pottery situation in that city:

At a meeting of the hollowware pressers' local of the Brotherhood of Operative Potters, the declaration of the pressers in favor of the uniform wage scale was unanimously reaffirmed.

The pressers expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the list, as prepared by the Pittsburg conference, claiming that it would be a great benefit to the entire pottery industry.

Nothing developed in the situation yesterday, the return of two members of the manufacturers' committee on labor being awaited before further action is taken. These absent members will be in town next Tuesday.

The Brotherhood, which is responsible for the list, is very anxious that it should go into effect and it is possible that if the jigermen persist in opposing it, a new union to include that branch of the industry will be formed.

The jigermen are now without the pale of the Brotherhood, having broken away some time ago, and formed an independent organization.

If they are not willing to work in cooperation with the Brotherhood, which is conceded to be the representative organization of the operatives, it will then be up to the Brotherhood to take some drastic course.

Henry Rhead, late vice president of the Brotherhood, yesterday sent a request to the True American to have an impression resulting from his remarks before the kilnmen, corrected.

The remarks of Mr. Rhead were published in yesterday's issue, and among other things he was reported as saying that some "good union men" had not paid a cent to the organization in 15 months.

In order that this might not be interpreted as a slap at the men in the union, Mr. Rhead requests that it be explained that his remarks were aimed at the non-union men.

It appears that after failure to pay dues for three months, the constitution of the union provides that members shall be dropped. While the rule is not rigidly enforced, there are some men who fail to pay dues for a year or more, but yet claim to be union men.

"My remarks," says Mr. Rhead, "were intended for men who are careless and ignore the union, but like to have its benefits. These are generally the first men to call on the union in times of trouble."

PRETTY MEN.

As a rule, they are the most egotistic asses on earth. The sissys never amount to much in the battle of life. They are not formed from the right kind of material.

INDEPENDENCE.

Independence is a good characteristic. Some people confound independence.

ence with stubbornness, and imagine that they are one and the same thing, when there is as much difference as there is between daylight and darkness—between heaven and hades. George Washington was independent. Balaam's mount was stubborn.

THE HEAT.

It was intense yesterday, especially when directly in contact with the sun's rays. Dogs would leave their masters, seek a shady spot momentarily, take a rest and then hasten after their owners, only to repeat the action time after time. The rain came as a rich blessing.

KILLING HIM.

What is killing him? Cigarettes. Do you mean it? Certainly. Where is he living? Right here in East Liverpool. His appetite has failed him. He cannot sleep. His days and nights are days and nights of wretchedness. He is but a mere boy, being murdered by the use of cigarettes. This is no fancy sketch, no figment of the brain, no mere creation of the imagination. His friends will read this and know we mean their boy—their relative. How soon will your boy be murdered?

PRAYER.

Prayer is a mighty lever when properly applied. Practice of prayer is an engine of almost irresistible power. What is the practice of prayer? Simply the appreciation of the blessings which Almighty God has already granted unto us and which we have not taken advantage of. By way of direct application in connection with everyday affairs in this city of East Liverpool. We pray, very earnestly, apparently, that the open saloon may cease to exist in East Liverpool; and then we fail to make the direct application of the blessing already granted to us, in a ballot which speaks louder than words. Men have been known to pray in the churches, in stentorian tones, that "the kingdom of God might prevail here on earth," and then go out and rent their buildings for saloon purposes, simply because they could get 50 per cent more rent from the saloonists than they could get from any business man engaged in any honorable or legitimate business.

When such a property owner addresses our heavenly father in prayer, asking for a blessing on his business, the following answer will certainly suit his case exactly: "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul."

FINISHED HIS WORK.

Examiner E. E. Miller Issued 288 Licenses to Stationary Engineers.

Elmer E. Miller, deputy examiner of stationary engineers for the Fifth district, which includes Stark county, has finished his work and issued 288 licenses and rejected nine applicants.

For every license a fee of $2 is paid, so it will be seen that the deputy turned in $576, which goes to the fund covering the expense of operating the department.

The total receipts for the month aggregate over $4,000.

Only a Rumor.

There are several rumors of capital in the hands of Tom Price, McElvain, of Pittsburgh, S. B. Goucher and the Steubenville Supply company buying up vacant lots at Toronto and building an immense white ware pottery, says the Steubenville Gazette.

They Are Safe.

A Famous Square.

There is said to be no equal in the world to the grand and imposing square of Paris, the Place de la Concorde. On one side of it is the Tuileries, on the opposite side the Champs Elysees and on a third the river Seine. In the center stands the obelisk of Luxor, a magnificent monolith of red Egyptian granite, 74 feet high and weighing 500,000 pounds. This obelisk was one of two of the same shape and size, erected in 1350 B. C., by Rameses the Great at the entrance of the temple of Thebes. Mohammed Ali, pasha of Egypt, presented it to the French government, and in 1836 it was removed to its present position in the Place de la Concorde. The removal and erection on the new site required an outlay of £80,000 and the employment of 800 men, the obelisk being transported to France in a vessel built especially for the purpose.

The Place de la Concorde is rich in historic interest. It was there that the guillotine was erected in the "reign of terror," after the death of Louis XVI, and it was there that the signal was given for the attack on the Bastille in 1789. Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette were beheaded there in 1793, and it was the scene of great rejoicing in 1848, when France was proclaimed a republic. The Place de la Concorde has also been termed the Place Louis XV and Place de la Revolution.

Rattlesnake Poison.

"Years ago, when I was a boy at home," said a southern man, "an uncle of mine, who lived near Montgomery, was out on his plantation one day when he saw an enormous rattlesnake stretched in a furrow of a cotton field. He seized a hoe lying near by and made a pass at the monster. At the same time it struck out at him and broke off one of its fangs on the edge of the hoe blade. My uncle dispatched the snake and then picked up the fang and brought it to the house as a curiosity. It was sharp as a needle, and a faint yellow stain at the tip showed where some of the virus had exuded.

"The bit of bone lay for at least three or four years in an ebony box on my uncle's writing table in his study, when one day a stupid negro servant girl, not knowing what it was, used it to extract a splinter from her thumb. In less than an hour her whole lower arm was swollen, and she exhibited all the characteristic symptoms of snake poison.

"My uncle had studied medicine and by prompt measures saved the girl's life, but for some mysterious reason gangrene subsequently appeared in her arm, and amputation was necessary. My uncle lost no time in burning his murderous relic."

Two and Four.

"Two?" demanded the peremptory conductor as he took a quarter from the woman who had just struggled to a place on the trolley.

"No, four," she replied.

Four fares were rung sharply, and the conductor handed back 5 cents.

"That isn't right" exclaimed the woman indignantly.

"You said you wanted to pay for four," retorted the trolley employee.

"I didn't," denied the woman. "You asked if my little boy was 2 years old, and I said no, he was 4. I suppose I'll have to pay for him if it's the rule, but I don't think it's right."

The remainder of the sentence was lost in the discords that issued from the throat of the enraged conductor, who thrust ten pennies into the outstretched hand and retired to the rear platform to relieve his feelings more fully by refusing to stop the car for any one for ten blocks.—New York Press.

Made Its Own Funeral Toilet.

There are certain insects that have such a respect for Mrs. Grundy and are endowed with such an innate love of neatness and order that not even death, or rather decapitation, can prevent them from making one grand final toilet, which is clearly designed to give them a sedate and respectable appearance after death.

Dr. Ballion, a skilled entomologist, discovered this remarkable fact. "During one of my recent horseback rides," he says, "I frequently caught one of those large flies which annoy cattle and horses so much, and I promptly got rid of it by crushing its head. One day, instead of throwing the mutilated insect away, I placed it on the back of my hand and indolently watched it. For some seconds the insect remained motionless, but then, to my unbounded surprise, it moved its front legs forward to the place where the head should have been, and, after it had rubbed them nervously together, apparently in anguish, it began to brush its body and to smooth its wings with its hind legs. Under the gentle pressure of these limbs the body gradually became extended and the extremity curved, while the wings gradually changed their natural position and left the upper part of the body exposed. Meanwhile the hind legs continued to brush each other from time to time.

"Naturally I watched this extraordinary sight with great interest, and, in order to see the finale, I took the insect into my study, where it lived an entire day, spending the time at the ungrateful task of making its own funeral toilet."

Couldn't Resist.

An eccentric clergyman in Cornwall had been much annoyed by the way the members of the congregation had of looking around to see late comers. After enduring it for some time he said on entering the reading desk one day: "Brethren, I regret to see that your attention is called away from your religious duties by your very natural desire to see who comes in behind you. I propose henceforth to save you the trouble by naming each person who may come late."

He then began, "Dearly beloved," but paused half way to interpolate

"Mr. S., with his wife and daughter." Mr. S. looked rather surprised, but the minister, with perfect gravity, resumed. "Presently he again paused." "Mr. C. and William D."

The abashed congregation kept their eyes studiously bent on their books. The service proceeded in the most orderly manner, the parson interrupting himself every now and then to name some newcomer. At last he said, still with the same perfect gravity:

"Mrs. S. in a new bonnet."

A Mystery of the Sea.

One of the most curious finds ever made from the sea was that which came to the Azores in 1858. The island of Corvo was then in the possession of two runaway British sailors. One morning there drifted ashore a craft which had evidently been frozen in the ice for a long time. It was an ancient and battered brig, without masts, bulwarks or name, but the hatches were on, the cabin doors fast, and the hulk was buoyant. She had little cargo, and that consisted of skins and furs in prime condition.

No papers were found in the cabin, but it was figured that she was a sealer or trader, carrying a crew of 10 or 12, and that she had been provisioned for a year. The flour was spoiled, but the beef was perfectly preserved. She had been abandoned when frozen in an iceberg and drifted for years. The date of the letter found in the forecastle showed that the brig had been abandoned nearly half a century before. The two sailors got out the furs, which eventually brought them $4,000, and two barrels of beef and then set fire to the wreck. No trace was ever found of its name or owners.

Easy Choice.

Remember the motto: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." We have only commenced to fight. The God of Right is with us.

PRETTY MEN.

As a rule, they are the most egotistic asses on earth. The sissys never amount to much in the battle of life. They are not formed from the right kind of material.

INDEPENDENCE.

Independence is a good characteristic. Some people confound independence with stubbornness, and imagine that they are one and the same thing, when there is as much difference as there is between daylight and darkness—between heaven and hades. George Washington was independent. Balaam's mount was stubborn.

THE HEAT.

It was intense yesterday, especially when directly in contact with the sun's rays. Dogs would leave their masters, seek a shady spot momentarily, take a rest and then hasten after their owners, only to repeat the action time after time. The rain came as a rich blessing.

KILLING HIM.

What is killing him? Cigarettes. Do you mean it? Certainly. Where is he living? Right here in East Liverpool. His appetite has failed him. He cannot sleep. His days and nights are days and nights of wretchedness. He is but a mere boy, being murdered by the use of cigarettes. This is no fancy sketch, no figment of the brain, no mere creation of the imagination. His friends will read this and know we mean their boy—their relative. How soon will your boy be murdered?

PRAYER.

Prayer is a mighty lever when properly applied. Practice of prayer is an engine of almost irresistible power. What is the practice of prayer? Simply the appreciation of the blessings which Almighty God has already granted unto us and which we have not taken advantage of. By way of direct application in connection with everyday affairs in this city of East Liverpool. We pray, very earnestly, apparently, that the open saloon may cease to exist in East Liverpool; and then we fail to make the direct application of the blessing already granted to us, in a ballot which speaks louder than words. Men have been known to pray in the churches, in stentorian tones, that "the kingdom of God might prevail here on earth," and then go out and rent their buildings for saloon purposes, simply because they could get 50 per cent more rent from the saloonists than they could get from any business man engaged in any honorable or legitimate business.

The Place de la Concorde is rich in historic interest. It was there that the guillotine was erected in the "reign of terror," after the death of Louis XVI, and it was there that the signal was given for the attack on the East in 1789. Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette were beheaded there in 1793, and it was the scene of great rejoicing in 1848, when France was proclaimed a republic. The Place de la Concorde has also been termed the Place Louis XV and Place de la Revolution.

Rattlesnake Poison.

"Years ago, when I was a boy at home," said a southern man, "an uncle of mine, who lived near Montgomery, was out on his plantation one day when he saw an enormous rattlesnake stretched in a furrow of a cotton field. He seized a hoe lying near by and made a pass at the monster. At the same time it struck out at him and broke off one of its fangs on the edge of the hoe blade. My uncle dispatched the snake and then picked up the fang and brought it to the house as a curiosity. It was sharp as a needle, and a faint yellow stain at the tip showed where some of the virus had exuded.

"The bit of bone lay for at least three or four years in an ebony box on my uncle's writing table in his study, when one day a stupid negro servant girl, not knowing what it was, used it to extract a splinter from her thumb. In less than an hour her whole lower arm was swollen, and she exhibited all the characteristic symptoms of snake poison.

"My uncle had studied medicine and by prompt measures saved the girl's life, but for some mysterious reason gangrene subsequently appeared in her arm, and amputation was necessary. My uncle lost no time in burning his murderous relic."

Two and Four.

"Two?" demanded the peremptory conductor as he took a quarter from the woman who had just struggled to a place on the trolley.

"No, four," she replied.

Four fares were rung sharply, and the conductor handed back 5 cents.

"That isn't right!" exclaimed the woman indignantly.

"You said you wanted to pay for four," retorted the trolley employee.

"I didn't," denied the woman. "You asked if my little boy was 2 years old, and I said no, he was 4. I suppose I'll have to pay for him if it's the rule, but I don't think it's right!"

The remainder of the sentence was lost in the discords that issued from the throat of the enraged conductor, who thrust ten pennies into the outstretched hand and retired to the rear platform to relieve his feelings more fully by refusing to stop the car for any one for ten blocks.—New York Press.

Made Its Own Funeral Toilet.
There are certain insects that have such a respect for Mrs. Grundy and are endowed with such an innate love of neatness and order that not even death, or rather decapitation, can prevent them from making one grand final toilet, which is clearly designed to give them a sedate and respectable appearance after death.

Dr.

Ballion,

a skilled entomologist, discovered this remarkable fact.

"During

one

my recent horseback rides," he says,

"I

frequently got

it by crushing its head.

One day, instead of throwing the mutilated insect away, I placed it on the back of my hand and indolently watched it. For some seconds the insect remained motionless, but then, to my unbounded surprise, it moved its front legs forward to the place where the head should have been, and, after it had rubbed them nervously together, apparently in anguish, it began to brush its body and to smooth its wings with its hind legs. Under the gentle pressure of these limbs the body gradually became extended and the extremity curved, while the wings gradually changed their natural position and left the upper part of the body exposed. Meanwhile the hind legs continued to brush each other from time to time.

"Naturally I watched this extraordinary sight with great interest, and, in order to see the finale, I took the insect into my study, where it lived an entire day, spending the time at the ungrateful task of making its own funeral toilet."

Couldn't Resist.

An eccentric clergyman in Cornwall had been much annoyed by the way the members of the congregation had of looking around to see late comers. After enduring it for some time he said on entering the reading desk one day: "Brethren, I regret to see that your attention is called away from your religious duties by your very natural desire to see who comes in behind you. I propose henceforth to save you the trouble by naming each person who may come late."

He then began, "Dearly beloved"

Easy Choice.

"None at all. There's only one rich uncle in the family."—Richmond Dispatch.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ARRESTS

James Swingewood and "Footy" Allison came near getting themselves into serious trouble Saturday night.

Swingewood went to the livery stable of Frank Dickey and took out a horse and traded it to Allison, who took the horse to the Southside and placed it in the livery stable at that place and left orders for the horse to be given to none but himself.

When Dickey missed the horse a search was instituted and it was discovered on the Southside.

Yesterday Dickey, accompanied by Officer Woods, went over to get the horse, and after considerable trouble succeeded, bringing it back to this city.

No arrests were made.

NEW POTTERY.

LISBON MAY GET A FIVE-KILN PLANT.

People From This City With Cash Are Said to be Back of the Enterprise.

Lisbon is still hustling for new manufacturers and the latest is a pottery. The Patriot of Saturday has the following:

We are in possession of some inside information, which we now proceed to give to our readers. Some responsible and practical men of East Liverpool will build a five-kiln pottery in our town if we will do something in the way of a bonus.

The proposition is this: They want us to raise a bonus of $10,000 cash, and then they will purchase land and lay out lots, selling them at about $75 each, and in this way raise about $10,000 more. Mark this: They ask us to raise only $10,000 and they will take care of the lot business. We believe this to be a fair and reasonable proposition, and our people ought not to hesitate a single day.

A five-kiln pottery means the employment of about 225 people and an increase in population of nearly 1,000 inhabitants. It means 150 new dwelling houses. These things are valuable to a town located like Lisbon, and a few of such enterprises will place our little city in the lead of all cities in the country.

We have the place for a big city, and nature has blessed us with plenty of pure water, splendid coal, fire clay, cement rock and building stone. No other place in the county has such natural advantages as we enjoy. Now is the time to strike. Talk this matter over between now and Monday. If you express yourselves favorable to the enterprise a meeting will be called Monday and subscriptions will be taken up at once. Act now and act for the good of the town.

ARMORED COFFINS

They Were Once Used in a Churchyard in Scotland.

In the earlier half of the nineteenth century the practice of stealing bodies from the churchyards for the purpose of sale as subjects for dissection, which was known as "body snatching," was for a time very rife.

Various plans were made to defeat the nefarious and sacrilegious proceedings of the "body snatchers," or "resurrectionists," as they were sometimes called, a very common one being the erection of two or more small watch-houses whose windows commanded the whole burying ground, and in which the friends of the deceased mounted guard for a number of nights after the funeral.

A usual method of the grave robbers was to dig down to the head of the coffin and bore in it a large round hole by means of a specially constructed center bit. It was to counteract this maneuver that the two curious coffin-like relics now lying on either side of the door of the ruined church of Aberfoyle, in Perthshire, were constructed. They are solid masses of cast iron of enormous weight.

When an interment took place one of these massive slabs was lowered by suitable derricks, tackles and chains on to the top of the coffin, the grave was filled in, and there it was left for some considerable time. Later on the grave was opened and the iron armor plate was removed and laid aside ready for another funeral.

These contrivances still lie on the grass of the lonely little churchyard, objects of curiosity to the passing cyclist and tourist.—Scientific American.

PANNED MUSHROOMS. — Medium sized, fresh mushrooms which have just passed the stage of showing the gills are considered the nicest for panning. Peel by drawing the skin from the edge toward the center of the mushroom with the aid of a sharp knife. Place a piece of butter the size of a walnut in the frying pan, and when hot carefully arrange the mushrooms on their crowns, and in the open top of each place a sliver of butter and a speck of cayenne. Cook in this manner eight minutes. Do not turn them, but see that they do not scorch. Serve on buttered squares of toast.

Look These Up.

In many educational journals nowadays we see pronunciation tests, catch words, etc., which may be valuable for technical use and yet not being needed every day in everyday talk are, like certain folks I know, chiefly interesting on public occasions. I should like to put down here a list of words that are very generally mispronounced.

They Were Once Used in a Churchyard in Scotland.

In the earlier half of the nineteenth century the practice of stealing bodies from the churchyards for the purpose of sale as subjects for dissection, which was known as "body snatching," was for a time very rife.

Various plans were made to defeat the nefarious and sacrilegious proceedings of the "body snatchers," or "resurrectionists," as they were sometimes called, a very common one being the erection of two or more small watch-houses whose windows commanded the whole burying ground, and in which the friends of the deceased mounted guard for a number of nights after the funeral.

A usual method of the grave robbers was to dig down to the head of the coffin and bore in it a large round hole by means of a specially constructed center bit. It was to counteract this maneuver that the two curious coffin-like relics now lying on either side of the door of the ruined church of Aberfoyle, in Perthshire, were constructed. They are solid masses of cast iron of enormous weight.

When an interment took place one of these massive slabs was lowered by suitable derricks, tackles and chains on to the top of the coffin, the grave was filled in, and there it was left for some considerable time. Later on the grave was opened and the iron armor plate was removed and laid aside ready for another funeral.

SWINGEWOOD TOOK A HORSE

TAKEN TO THE SOUTHSIDE

And Placed In a Stable There Where the Owner Recovered It Yesterday.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ARRESTS

James Swingewood and "Footy" Allison came near getting themselves into serious trouble Saturday night.

Swingewood went to the livery stable of Frank Dickey and took out a horse and traded it to Allison, who took the horse to the Southside and placed it in the livery stable at that place and left orders for the horse to be given to none but himself.

When Dickey missed the horse a search was instituted and it was discovered on the Southside.

Yesterday Dickey, accompanied by Officer Woods, went over to get the horse, and after considerable trouble succeeded, bringing it back to this city.

No arrests were made.

NEW POTTERY.

LISBON MAY GET A FIVE-KILN PLANT.

People From This City With Cash Are Said to be Back of the Enterprise.

Lisbon is still hustling for new manufactures and the latest is a pottery. The Patriot of Saturday has the following:

We are in possession of some inside information, which we now proceed to give to our readers. Some responsible and practical men of East Liverpool will build a five-kiln pottery in our town if we will do something in the way of a bonus.

The proposition is this: They want us to raise a bonus of $10,000 cash, and then they will purchase land and lay out lots, selling them at about $75 each, and in this way raise about $10,000 more. Mark this: They ask us to raise only $10,000 and they will take care of the lot business. We believe this to be a fair and reasonable proposition, and our people ought not to hesitate a single day.

A five-kiln pottery means the employment of about 225 people and an increase in population of nearly 1,000 inhabitants. It means 150 new dwelling houses. These things are valuable to a town located like Lisbon, and a few of such enterprises will place our little city in the lead of all cities in the county.

We have the place for a big city, and nature has blessed us with plenty of pure water, splendid coal, fire clay, cement rock and building stone. No other place in the county has such natural advantages as we enjoy. Now is the time to strike. Talk this matter over between now and Monday. If you express yourselves favorable to the enterprise a meeting will be called Monday and subscriptions will be taken up at once. Act now and act for the good of the town.

SAID HE KILLED LANE.

Steubenville Boy Committed Express Car Crime.

WANTED MONEY FOR MARRIAGE.

Ferrell's Wedding Day Approached and He Had No Employment—His Victim Befriending Him When Murdered—Arrested at His Sweetheart's Home.

Columbus, O., Aug. 13.—Charles R. H. Ferrell, a former employee of the Adams Express company, was arrested in this city and confessed to the killing of Messenger Charles Lane and the robbery of the way safe of the Adams Express company on the Pennsylvania eastbound train which arrived in this city at midnight Friday. One thousand dollars of the money which he had stolen was recovered.

Ferrell was to have been married Thursday next to Miss Lillian Costlow, daughter of Patrick Costlow, an engineer on the Pennsylvania lines. He had been discharged from the employ of the Adams Express company about three months ago, and had not been able to secure employment. He confessed that the motive of the robbery was to secure money, of which he felt in great need on account of his approaching marriage. The money recovered he had given to Miss Costlow to keep for him, saying that it was money he had saved from his earnings. He was at the home of his affianced and in her company when placed under arrest.

Ferrell is but 22 years old, and has a splendid physique, being 6 feet in height, with dark hair and an attractive face. When the officers took him into custody he assumed a nonchalant demeanor, but when he found that he could no longer deceive the officers he made a full confession. After his statement had been taken by Chief of Police Tyler and he was led to a cell in the police station he was in a state of nervous collapse and orders were given that he be watched closely to prevent him from doing himself bodily harm. In his confession he said that he had become desperate because of his inability to secure employment and a realization of the fact that he must have money to defray the expenses of his approaching marriage. The murder had been carefully planned, and it included the murder of Express Messenger Lane. He had no accomplices and no confidants. He knew Lane well. In fact they were friends, and he relied upon Lane's confidence to help him execute the crime. He knew that considerable money was always carried by the messenger on Pennsylvania train No. 8 between St. Louis and Columbus, and that he was certain to secure a large sum if he robbed the way safe on that train. Having provided himself with a Smith & Wesson six-shooter, .38 caliber, he went to Urbana Friday morning and waited for No. 8. When the train arrived there Ferrell went at once to the express car and told Lane that he was out of money and asked permission to ride to Columbus with him. Lane consented, never for a moment suspecting the treachery of his pretended friend. For a short time after the train left Urbana they chatted pleasantly. Lane sat in a chair in the end of the car with his back slightly turned.

When Ferrell had finally nerved himself for the crime he drew his revolver and stepped up behind Lane unobserved and fired three shots in rapid succession into the messenger's back. Lane rolled off the chair on the floor on his face, and Ferrell quickly fired the remaining shots at the prostrate body. Lane was unconscious, but Ferrell, fearing that the wounds already inflicted would not cause death, took Lane's revolver and fired two more bullets from it into the body. Ferrell then took the keys to the way safe from the pocket of the dead messenger, opened the safe, and laid Lane's revolver inside where he could reach it easily in case he was detected and needed it to defend himself. After he had taken out all the sacks containing the money packages, money orders and way bills, he placed them in a small satchel and waited until the train arrived at Plain City, where he slipped off the train. He walked about for a few minutes to regain composure, and then inquired for the hotel, which he found after a short time, a belated citizen directing him to the place. He secured a room and retired for the night without registering, a fact of which the landlord took no notice at the time, as he was half asleep. Once in his room, Ferrell proceeded to go through the packages and take out all the cash. The remainder he tied up in a bundle.

an easy matter to dispose of the latter. Lifting up the mattress of the bed he placed the revolver in a secure place in the springs. It was not so easy to dispose of the bundle of express sacks and envelopes. After thinking over the matter he concluded he could get rid of the bundle best by expressing it to a fictitious address in some distant city, knowing that it would remain there for a year at least before it would be opened if it was not intercepted. Ferrell arose early the next morning, and sauntered down to the railroad station and sat there for a time reading a book. Then he expressed the package, which he addressed to C. W. Caylor, Lockport, N. Y., bought a ticket for Columbus. When he arrived in the city he went at once to his boarding place on the North Side of the city and changed his clothes. Ferrell said he was much disturbed by the talk about the murder and robbery, which he heard upon every side, but he kept up his nerve. During the day he paid a number of bills that he owed out of the money which he had stolen and bought some clothes and other things which he needed. Saturday night he went to see Miss Costlow, and arranged to call again Sunday afternoon.

It was at Plain City last Saturday night that City Detectives O'Neil and Dundon obtained the clue that led to Ferrell's arrest. They had been at the hotel there at daylight while Ferrell was sleeping in an upper room and asked the proprietor if any strangers had registered or had been seen about the hotel. The proprietor said that he did not remember having seen any strangers. Later in the afternoon the detectives again asked the proprietor if he had seen any strangers about and he remembered then that a man who had forgot to register had stayed at the house over night and had gone away on the early morning train to Columbus. The detectives at once searched the room and were rewarded by finding Lane's revolver where Ferrell had secreted it. They also found several waybills that had been overlooked by Ferrell in his hurry and excitement while making up the express package. The hotel keeper was able to give only an imperfect description of the strange guest, because, as he said, he was too sleepy at the time to take any particular notice of him. After learning of the express package the detectives at once telephoned to Columbus and had it intercepted. The package was opened and the stolen sacks containing the money orders, checks and other things which Ferrell desired to get rid of were found.

Chief of Detectives Kelley and Detectives O'Neil and Dundon then set to work to run down the mysterious stranger whom they had become convinced was an ex-employee of the Adams Express company. Suspicion soon rested on Ferrell and information secured in regard to his recent movements was considered sufficient to warrant his arrest. The detectives first went to his boarding house and were informed that he was probably at the home of his sweetheart on the East Side. They at once went to the Costlow residence, where they found Ferrell. It was a trying duty for the detectives when they were ushered into the room where Ferrell sat conversing with the young lady. Ferrell appeared annoyed at the intrusion. The detectives did not broach the subject of the train robbery, but told him that he was suspected of a burglary and that they wished him to accompany them to the police station, where the chief of police wanted to interview him. Thinking that perhaps the detectives were on the wrong scent, Ferrell nerved himself and said with apparent composure: "I guess there must be some mistake." He excused himself to the young lady and accompanied the detectives to the city prison. On the way to the station the detectives told Ferrell what he was wanted for and what they knew, and he reluctantly admitted that he had committed the crime. At the police station a written confession was taken by the chief of police. Ferrell tried to keep his nerve, but he could not stand the ordeal much longer. He did not tell a connected story. Most of the facts were brought out by questions, which he seemed to answer reluctantly. Several times he broke down and he was finally led to a cell, where he was in a state of collapse. He then seemed to fully realize for the first time the awful nature of his crime and the fact that he will, in all probability, atone for it with his own life. As soon as it was learned that Ferrell had given the money to his sweetheart, Inspector Barron went to the house and secured it. The young lady was utterly prostrated by the disclosures. She had not suspected Ferrell of wrongdoing, and the news was a terrible shock to her and her parents, who had regarded Ferrell as a model young man. The young lady had never doubted his story that the money which he placed in her keeping had been earned and saved by him, as he stated.

Ferrell's home is in Steubenville, O. His father is said to be a bridge car-

porter and a highly-respected citizen of that place. Ferrell worked for the Adams Express company at Steubenville, coming to Columbus a year and four months ago when he was given a run as messenger between Columbus and Pittsburgh. He was discharged about three months ago after three complaints had been made against him on account of broken packages. Ferrell was not able to give a very satisfactory explanation in any instance, and after the last complaint he was discharged from the service. The express company does not charge Ferrell with crookedness in any of these cases, but say that he did not give satisfactory service. It is believed that all the cash taken by Ferrell, except about $150 which he had spent, has been recovered. The amount in the hands of the police is $10,631. A bundle of money orders which Ferrell says he threw into a vault have not been recovered.

It has been determined by Ferrell's confession that the murder and robbery were committed in Union county and that he will have to be tried there. He states that he shot Lane just after the train left Milford Center and the robbery must have been committed in Union county, also as he left the train at Plain City, which is almost on the line between Union and Franklin counties.

Later Ferrell recovered his composure after eating a hearty supper and smoking a cigar.

FIGHTING MEN STARVE

Rundle's Soldiers Weak From Lack of Food.

BRITISH RED TAPEISM SCORED.

Correspondent Hales' Shocking Revelation—Food Rots at Stations While Men Go Hungry—Rundle Has to Perform Great Task, With Weak Men.

London, Aug. 13.—Mr. A. G. Hales, representative in South Africa of The Daily News, is the latest war correspondent to attack the methods and the red tape of the British war office.

He said in part: "Let me tell you how our army in Africa is treated by the incompetent people of the good city of London. Sir Leslie Rundle has to hold a frontage line from Windburg, via Sennakal, almost to the borders of Basutoland. His whole front, extending nearly a hundred miles, is constantly threatened by an active, dashing, determined enemy, an enemy which knows the country far better than an English fox-hunting squire knows the ground he hunts over season after season. To hold this vast line intact General Rundle has to march from point to point, as his scouts warn him of the movements of the tireless foe.

General Rundle's task is a colossal one, and any sane man would think that gigantic efforts would be made to keep him amply supplied with food for his soldiers. But such is not the case. The men are absolutely starving. Many of the infantrymen are so weak that they can barely stagger along under the weight of their soldierly equipment. They are worn to shadows, and move with weary, listless footsteps on the march. People high up in authority may deny this, but he who denies it sullies the truth. This is what the soldiers get to eat, what they have been getting to eat for a long time past and what they are likely to get for a long time to come unless England rouses herself and bites to the bone in regard to the people who are responsible for it:

"One pound of raw flour, which the soldiers have to cook after a hard day's march, is served out to each man every alternate day. The following day he eats one pound of biscuits. In this country there is no fuel excepting a little ox dung dried by the sun. If a soldier is lucky enough to pick up a little he can go to the nearest water, of which there is plenty, mix his cake without yeast or baking powder and make some sort of a wretched mouthful. He gets one pound of raw fresh meat daily, which nine times out of ten he cannot cook, and there his supplies end.

"What has become of the rations of rum, of sugar, of tea, of cocoa, of groceries generally? Ask at the snug little railway sidings, where the goods are stacked—and forgotten. Ask in the big stores at Cape Town and other seaport towns. Ask in your own country, where countless thousands of pounds' worth of food stuff lie rotting in the warehouses, bound up and tied down with redtape bandages. Ask, yes, ask; but don't stop at asking; damn somebody high up in power. Don't let some wretched underling be made the scapegoat of this criminal state of affairs, for the taint of this shameful things rests on you, upon every Briton whose home, privilege and prosperity is being safeguarded by these famishing men. The folks in authority will probably tell you that General Rundle and his splendid fellows are so isolated that food cannot be obtained for them. I say that is false, for recently I, in company with another correspondent, left General Rundle's camp without an escort. We made our way in the saddle, taking our two Cape carts with us to Winburg railway station; leaving our horseflesh there we took the train for East London. Then back to the junction, and down to Cape Town, where we remained for 48 hours, and then made our way back to Winburg, and from Winburg we came without escort to rejoin General Rundle at Hammonia. If two war correspondents could traverse that country and get through with winter supplies for themselves, why can't the transport people manage to do the same?"

on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, a southbound coal train was wrecked, two men killed and two others badly injured. There were 30 cars in the train, and the wreck was caused by the tender of the locomotive jumping the track. It was followed by 22 cars, all going down a steep embankment of about 25 feet. Five cars and the caboose remained on the track.

Engineer Mike McGreavy, of Norwalk, O., jumped alighting on his head, fracturing his skull. He was taken to a boarding house in Martins Ferry, and died. He is survived by a wife and two children.

Fireman G. E. Turner, of Steubenville, jumped and received two bad cuts at the neck and shoulder. His condition is serious.

Israel Wolfe, of Steubenville, front brakeman, jumped and received internal injuries. He is painfully cut but not seriously.

SAID HE KILLED LANE.

WANTED MONEY FOR MARRIAGE.

Columbus, O., Aug. 13.—Charles R. H. Ferrell, a former employee of the Adams Express company, was arrested in this city and confessed to the killing of Messenger Charles Lane and the robbery of the way safe of the Adams Express company on the Pennsylvania eastbound train which arrived in this city at midnight Friday. One thousand dollars of the money which he had stolen was recovered.

Ferrell was to have been married Thursday next to Miss Lillian Costlow, daughter of Patrick Costlow, an engineer on the Pennsylvania lines. He had been discharged from the employ of the Adams Express company about three months ago, and had not been able to secure employment. He confessed that the motive of the robbery was to secure money, of which he felt in great need on account of his approaching marriage. The money recovered he had given to Miss Costlow to keep for him, saying that it was money he had saved from his earnings. He was at the home of his fiancée and in her company when placed under arrest.

Ferrell is but 22 years old, and has a splendid physique, being 6 feet in height, with dark hair and an attractive face. When the officers took him into custody he assumed a nonchalant demeanor, but when he found that he could no longer deceive the officers he made a full confession. After his statement had been taken by Chief of Police Tyler and he was led to a cell in the police station he was in a state of nervous collapse and orders were given that he be watched closely to prevent him from doing himself bodily harm. In his confession he said that he had become desperate because of his inability to secure employment and a realization of the fact that he must have money to defray the expenses of his approaching marriage. The murder had been carefully planned, and it included the murder of Express Messenger Lane. He had no accomplices and no confidants. He knew Lane well. In fact they were friends, and he relied upon Lane's confidence to help him execute the crime. He knew that considerable money was always carried by the messenger on Pennsylvania train No. 8 between St. Louis and Columbus, and that he was certain to secure a large sum if he robbed the way safe on that train. Having provided himself with a Smith & Wesson six-shooter, .38 caliber, he went to Urbana Friday morning and waited for No. 8. When the train arrived there Ferrell went at once to the express car and told Lane that he was out of money and asked permission to ride to Columbus with him. Lane consented, never for a moment suspecting the treachery of his pretended friend. For a short time after the train left Urbana they chatted pleasantly. Lane sat in a chair in the end of the car with his back slightly turned.

When Ferrell had finally nerved himself for the crime he drew his revolver and stepped up behind Lane unobserved and fired three shots in rapid succession into the messenger's back. Lane rolled off the chair on the floor on his face, and Ferrell quickly fired the remaining shots at the prostrate body. Lane was unconscious, but Ferrell, fearing that the wounds already inflicted would not cause death, took Lane's revolver and fired two more bullets from it into the body. Ferrell then took the keys to the way safe from the pocket of the dead messenger, opened the safe, and laid Lane's revolver inside where he could reach it easily in case he was detected and needed it to defend himself. After he had taken out all the sacks containing the money packages, money orders and way bills, he placed them in a small satchel and waited until the car arrived at Plain City, where he slipped off the train. He walked about for a few minutes to regain composure, and then inquired for the hotel, which he found after a short time, a belated citizen directing him to the place. He secured a room and retired for the night without registering, a fact of which the landlord took no notice at the time, as he was half asleep. Once in his room, Ferrell proceeded to go through the packages and take out all the cash. The remainder he tied up in a bundle.

an easy matter to dispose of the latter. Lifting up the mattress of the bed he placed the revolver in a secure place in the springs. I was not so easy to dispose of the bundle of express sacks and envelopes. After thinking over the matter he concluded he could get rid of the bundle best by expressing it to a fictitious address in some distant city, knowing that it would remain there for a year at least before it would be opened if it was not intercepted. Ferrell arose early the next morning, and sauntered down to the railroad station and sat there for a time reading a book. Then he expressed the package, which he addressed to C. W. Caylor, Lockport, N. Y., bought a ticket for Columbus. When he arrived in the city he went at once to his boarding place on the North Side of the city and changed his clothes. Ferrell said he was much disturbed by the talk about the murder and robbery, which he heard upon every side, but he kept up his nerve. During the day he paid a number of bills that he owed out of the money which he had stolen and bought some clothes and other things which he needed. Saturday night he went to see Miss Costlow, and arranged to call again Sunday afternoon.

It was at Plain City last Saturday night that City Detectives O'Neill and Dundon obtained the clue that led to Ferrell's arrest. They had been at the hotel there at daylight while Ferrell was sleeping in an upper room and asked the proprietor if any strangers had registered or had been seen about the hotel. The proprietor said that he did not remember having seen any strangers. Later in the afternoon the detectives again asked the proprietor if he had seen any strangers about and he remembered then that a man who had forgot to register had stayed at the house over night and had gone away on the early morning train to Columbus. The detectives at once searched the room and were rewarded by finding Lane's revolver which Ferrell had secreted it. They also found several waybills that had been overlooked by Ferrell in his hurry and excitement while making up the express package. The hotel keeper was able to give only an imperfect description of the strange guest, because, as he said, he was too sleepy at the time to take any particular notice of him. After learning of the express package the detectives at once telephoned to Columbus and had it intercepted. The package was opened and the stolen sacks containing the money orders, checks and other things which Ferrell desired to get rid of were found.

Chief of Detectives Kelley and Detectives O'Neill and Dundon then set to work to run down the mysterious stranger whom they had become convinced was an ex-employee of the Adams Express company. Suspicion soon rested on Ferrell and information secured in regard to his recent movements was considered sufficient to warrant his arrest. The detectives first went to his boarding house and were informed that he was probably at the home of his sweetheart on the East Side. They at once went to the Costlow residence, where they found Ferrell. It was a trying duty for the detectives when they were ushered into the room where Ferrell sat conversing with the young lady. Ferrell appeared annoyed at the intrusion. The detectives did not broach the subject of the train robbery, but told him that he was suspected of a burglary and that they wished him to accompany them to the police station, where the chief of police wanted to interview him. Thinking that perhaps the detectives were on the wrong scent, Ferrell nervously and said with apparent composure: "I guess there must be some mistake." He excused himself to the young lady and accompanied the detectives to the city prison. On the way to the station the detectives told Ferrell what he was wanted for and what they knew, and he reluctantly admitted that he had committed the crime. At the police station a written confession was taken by the chief of police. Ferrell tried to keep his nerve, but he could not stand the ordeal much longer. He did not tell a connected story. Most of the facts were brought out by questions, which he seemed to answer reluctantly. Several times he broke down and he was finally led to a cell, where he was in a state of collapse. He then seemed to fully realize for the first time the awful nature of his crime and the fact that he will, in all probability, atone for it with his own life. As soon as it was learned that Ferrell had given the money to his sweetheart Inspector Barron went to the house and secured it. The young lady was utterly prostrated by the disclosures. She had not suspected Ferrell of wrongdoing, and the news was a terrible shock to her and her parents, who had regarded Ferrell as a model young man. The young lady had never doubted his story that the money which he placed in her keeping had been earned and saved by him, as he stated.

porter and a highly-respected citizen of that place. Ferrell worked for the Adams Express company at Steubenville, coming to Columbus a year and four months ago when he was given a run as messenger between Columbus and Pittsburgh. He was discharged about three months ago after three complaints had been made against him on account of broken packages. Ferrell was not able to give a very satisfactory explanation in any instance, and after the last complaint he was discharged from the service. The express company does not charge Ferrell with crookedness in any of these cases, but say that he did not give satisfactory service. It is believed that all the cash taken by Ferrell, except about $150 which he had spent, has been recovered. The amount in the hands of the police is $10,60.31. A bundle of money orders which Ferrell says he threw into a vault have not been recovered.

It has been determined by Ferrell's confession that the murder and robbery were committed in Union county and that he will have to be tried there. He states that he shot Lane just after the train left Milford Center and the robbery must have been committed in Union county, also as he left the train at Plain City, which is almost on the line between Union and Franklin counties.

Later Ferrell recovered his composure after eating a hearty supper and smoking a cigar.

FIGHTING MEN STARVE

BRITISH RED TAPEISM SCORED.

London, Aug. 13.—Mr. A. G. Hales, representative in South Africa of The Daily News, is the latest war correspondent to attack the methods and the red tape of the British war office. He said in part: "Let me tell you how our army in Africa is treated by the incompetent people of the good city of London. Sir Leslie Rundle has to hold a frontage line from Winsburg, via Senechal, almost to the borders of Basutoland. His whole front, extending nearly a hundred miles, is constantly threatened by an active, dashing, determined enemy, an enemy which knows the country far better than an English fox-hunting squire knows the ground he hunts over season after season. To hold this vast line intact General Rundle has to march from point to point, as his scouts warn him of the movements of the tireless foe.

General Rundle's task is a colossal one, and any sane man would think that gigantic efforts would be made to keep him amply supplied with food for his soldiers. But such is not the case. The men are absolutely starving. Many of the infantrymen are so weak that they can barely stagger along under the weight of their soldierly equipment. They are worn to shadows, and move with weary, listless footsteps on the march. People high up in authority may deny this, but he who denies it sullies the truth. This is what the soldiers get to eat, what they have been getting to eat for a long time past and what they are likely to get for a long time to come unless England rouses herself and bites to the bone in regard to the people who are responsible for it:

"One pound of raw flour, which the soldiers have to cook after a hard day's march, is served out to each man every alternate day. The following day he eats one pound of biscuits. In this country there is no fuel excepting a little ox dung dried by the sun. If a soldier is lucky enough to pick up a little he can go to the nearest water, of which there is plenty, mix his cake without yeast or baking powder and make some sort of a wretched mouthful. He gets one pound of raw fresh meat daily, which nine times out of ten he cannot cook, and there his supplies end.

"What has become of the rations of rum, of sugar, of tea, of cocoa, of groceries generally? Ask at the snug little railway sidings, where the goods are stacked and forgotten. Ask in the big stores at Cape Town and other seaport towns. Ask in your own country, where countless thousands of pounds' worth of food stuff lie rotting in the warehouses, bound up and tied down with red tape bandages. Ask, yes, ask; but don't stop at asking; damn somebody high up in power. Don't let some wretched underling be made the scapegoat of this criminal state of affairs, for the taint of this shameful things rests on you, upon every Briton whose home, privilege and prosperity is being safeguarded by these famishing men. The folks in authority will probably tell you that General Rundle and his splendid fellows are so isolated that food cannot be obtained for them. I say that is false, for recently I, in company with another correspondent, left General Rundle's camp without an escort. We made our way in the saddle, taking our two Cape carts with us to Winsburg railway station; leaving our horseflesh there we took the train for East London. Then back to the junction, and down to Cape Town, where we remained for 48 hours, and then made our way back to Winsburg, and from Winsburg we came without escort to rejoin General Rundle at Hammonia. If two war correspondents could traverse that country and get through with winter supplies for themselves, why can't the transport people manage to do the same?"

WANTED MONEY FOR MARRIAGE.

Columbus, O., Aug. 13.—Charles R. H. Ferrell, a former employee of the Adams Express company, was arrested in this city and confessed to the killing of Messenger Charles Lane and the robbery of the way safe of the Adams Express company on the Pennsylvania eastbound train which arrived in this city at midnight Friday. One thousand dollars of the money which he had stolen was recovered.

Ferrell was to have been married Thursday next to Miss Lillian Costlow, daughter of Patrick Costlow, an engineer on the Pennsylvania lines. He had been discharged from the employ of the Adams Express company about three months ago, and had not been able to secure employment. He confessed that the motive of the robbery was to secure money, of which he felt in great need on account of his approaching marriage. The money recovered he had given to Miss Costlow to keep for him, saying that it was money he had saved from his earnings. He was at the home of his fiancée and in her company when placed under arrest.

FIGHTING MEN STARVE

BRITISH RED TAPEISM SCORED.

Correspondent Hales' Shocking Revelation—Food Rots at Stations White Men Go Hungry—Rundle Has to Perform Great Task, With Weak Men.

London, Aug. 13.—Mr. A. G. Hales, representative in South Africa of The Daily News, is the latest war correspondent to attack the methods and the red tape of the British war office.

He said in part: "Let me tell you how our army in Africa is treated by the incompetent people of the good city of London. Sir Leslie Rundle has to hold a frontage line from Winburg, via Sennel, almost to the borders of Basutoland. His whole front, extending nearly a hundred miles, is constantly threatened by an active, dashing, determined enemy, an enemy which knows the country far better than an English fox-hunting squire knows the ground he hunts over season after season. To hold this vast line intact General Rundle has to march from point to point, as his scouts warn him of the movements of the tireless foe.

General Rundle's task is a colossal one, and any sane man would think that gigantic efforts would be made to keep him amply supplied with food for his soldiers. But such is not the case. The men are absolutely starving. Many of the infantrymen are so weak that they can barely stagger along under the weight of their soldierly equipment. They are worn to shadows, and move with weary, listless footsteps on the march. People high up in authority may deny this, but he who denies it sullies the truth. This is what the soldiers get to eat, what they have been getting to eat for a long time past and what they are likely to get for a long time to come unless England rouses herself and bites to the bone in regard to the people who are responsible for it:

"One pound of raw flour, which the soldiers have to cook after a hard day's march, is served out to each man every alternate day. The following day he eats one pound of biscuits. In this country there is no fuel excepting a little ox dung dried by the sun. If a soldier is lucky enough to pick up a little he can go to the nearest water, of which there is plenty, mix his cake without yeast or baking powder and make some sort of a wretched mouthful. He gets one pound of raw fresh meat daily, which nine times out of ten he cannot cook, and there his supplies end.

"What has become of the rations of rum, of sugar, of tea, of cocoa, of groceries generally? Ask at the snug little railway sidings, where the goods are stacked—and forgotten. Ask in the big stores at Cape Town and other seaport towns. Ask in your own country, where countless thousands of pounds' worth of food stuff lie rotting in the warehouses, bound up and tied down with red tape bandages. Ask, yes, ask; but don't stop at asking; damn somebody high up in power. Don't let some wretched underling be made the scapegoat of this criminal state of affairs, for the taint of this shameful things rests on you, upon every Briton whose home, privilege and prosperity is being safeguarded by these famishing men. The folks in authority will probably tell you that General Rundle and his splendid fellows are so isolated that food cannot be obtained for them. I say that is false, for recently I, in company with another correspondent, left General Rundle's camp without an escort. We made our way in the saddle, taking our two Cape carts with us to Winburg railway station; leaving our horseflesh there we took the train for East London. Then back to the junction, and down to Cape Town, where we remained for 48 hours, and then made our way back to Winburg, and from Winburg we came without escort to rejoin General Rundle at Hammerton. If two war correspondents could traverse that country and get through with winter supplies for themselves, why can't the transport people manage to do the same?"

TWO MEN KILLED; A TRAIN DERAILED.

WHEELING & LAKE ERIC COAL TRAIN GOES OVER A STEEP EMBANKMENT.

TWO INJURED.

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 13.—At Deep Run, about four miles above this city, on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, a southbound coal train was wrecked, two men killed and two others badly injured. There were 30 cars in the train, and the wreck was caused by the tender of the locomotive jumping the track. It was followed by 22 cars, all going down a steep embankment of about 25 feet. Five cars and the caboose remained on the track.

Engineer Mike McGreavy, of Norwalk, O., jumped alighting on his head, fracturing his skull. He was taken to a boarding house in Martins Ferry, and died. He is survived by a wife and two children.

Fireman G. E. Turner, of Steubenville, jumped and received two bad cuts at the neck and shoulder. His condition is serious.

Israel Wolfe, of Steubenville, front brakeman, jumped and received internal injuries. He is painfully cut but not seriously.

Killed by Headache Powder.

ALTOONA, PA., Aug. 13.—Wm. P. Reeder, who left here a couple of years ago, to become a yard dispatcher for the Baltimore & Ohio at Pittsburgh, was found dead at the Palmer house, Patton, having been killed by a headache powder given him, with good intent, by his sweetheart, Miss Bird Hurd.

A BOOM.

"The undertaker is very jolly this morning."

"Yes. Three hundred new doctors were graduated last night."—Harlem Life.

OHIO IN CONGRESS FROM 1803 TO 1901.

JOHN F. MCKINNEY.

John F. McKinney of Piqua was a prominent lawyer in Miami county and one of the Democratic state leaders. He served two terms in congress and displayed no inconsiderable ability. He was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Fourth district, composed of Miami, Darke, Shelby, Logan and Campaign counties, and was elected to the Forty-second in 1870 from the same district. He was a political organizer of more than ordinary ability, and was chairman of the Democratic state committee for some years.

He was a man of great force of character, and exercised great influence in Miami county and throughout the Miami valley. He was born in Piqua, Miami county, April 12, 1827, and is living in the opening months of 1900. While always a strong partisan in his devotion to the Democratic party he was able to keep partisan sentiment within reasonable bounds during the days of the Civil war, and thus aided essentially in the rehabilitation of the organization. His counsel to his political associates was always eagerly listened to and generally followed. He was a man of powerful physique and commanding presence. He still resides at Piqua, Miami county.

WELLS A. HUTCHINS.

One of the most prominent attorneys in southern Ohio, represented Scioto county in the Fiftieth general assembly as a member of the house. He was a Democrat, but overcame a very large adverse Republican majority.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Eleventh district, Scioto, Adams, Lawrence, Gallia, Jackson and Vinton. This district was Republican by several thousand, but Mr. Hutchins overcame the adverse majority without seeming effort. He was a man of pleasing address, unusual oratorical powers, and a great lawyer and advocate. He was born in Hartford, Ohio, Oct. 8, 1818.

WILLIAM JOHNSON.

William Johnson of Richland county served a single term in the national house. He was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Eighth district, consisting of the counties of Richland, Morrow, Marion, Delaware and Union. He was born in Ireland in 1819, and died in Mansfield, Ohio, May 8, 1866.

WILLIAM E. FINCK.

William E. Finck was born at Somerset, formerly, and at that time, the county seat of Perry county, in the year 1822, and there he continued to reside during the remainder of the century, held in the highest esteem by all who knew him for his many traits of typical American citizenship. He was largely educated at St. Joseph's college, near his native town, one of the pioneer colleges of Ohio.

He was fitted by nature, as he was by education, for the legal profession, and was admitted to the bar in 1843. He was shortly afterward made prosecuting attorney of the county, by appointment, and quickly came to be recognized as a lawyer, in the lower courts and in the supreme court of the state. A most genial gentleman and an orator of unrivaled powers, he was popular to a degree but seldom attained.

He was originally a Whig in politics, attended all the Whig national conventions as a delegate from 1844 to 1852, but in 1854 left the Whig party because of the secret methods of what was popularly known as the Know Nothings, and allied himself with the Democratic party, and was one of its ablest advocates ever after to the close of the century.

He represented the Fifteenth Senatorial district, Perry and Muskingum counties, in the Fiftieth and Fifty-fifth general assemblies, and was the Democratic candidate for attorney general and supreme judge, under the second constitution, but failed of election.

In 1862 he was elected as a Democrat to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Twelfth district, Perry, Fairfield, Pickaway, Hocking, Ross and Pike counties, and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth from the same district in 1864, and was elected to the Forty-third in 1874 from the Twelfth district.

composed of the counties of Perry, Fairfield, Pickaway and Franklin, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of H. J. Jewett. In 1850 he ran as the Whig candidate against James M. Gaylord, Democrat, in the Thirteenth district, and so great was his popularity that he came within a few votes of being elected against an immense adverse Democratic majority. In congress he took a high rank among the members, and was given a place on theiciary and other important committees of the house.

FRANCIS C. LEBLOND.

Francis C. Leblond was born in Knox county, Ohio, Feb. 14, 1821, and educated himself for a period, during which he saved sufficient money out of his earnings to take a course in the Norwalk academy. He studied law and supported himself by teaching until he was admitted to the bar in 1844, being examined in the supreme court by Edwin M. Stanton, afterward secretary of war.

His examination indicated his thorough mastery of the profession, and bespoke him the brilliant professional career which followed. He located in Celina, Mercer county, and was made prosecuting attorney and called to other important local trusts. He spent the remainder of his life in active practice at Celina, and was held in the highest esteem.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirteenth congress as a Democrat from the Fifth district, Mercer, Van Wert, Allen, Auglaize, Hardin, Hancock and Wyandot counties, and was re-elected to the Thirtyninth from the same district, and then voluntarily retired to the more congenial pursuits of life. As a congressman he displayed marked abilities.

EPHRAIM R. ECKLEY.

General Ephraim R. Eckley, a prominent citizen of Carroll county, was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, Dec. 9, 1812, and in addition to local trusts, was honored with many public positions by the voters of his county and district, and discharged all the duties imposed upon him with rare fidelity. He was a Whig, and afterward a leading Republican. In the civil war he was colonel of the Twenty-sixth O. V. I., and was made a brigadier general.

He was a member of the state senate in the Forty-second general assembly and was successively re-elected up to the Forty-ninth, and was a member of the house from Carroll county in the Fifty-first.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Seventeenth district, Carroll, Columbiana, Stark and Jefferson counties, and was re-elected to the Thirtyninth in 1864 and the Forty-first in 1866 from the same district. Both in the legislature and in congress he was an efficient and painstaking legislator. He served under General Rosecrans during the civil war in 1861, and under General Sheridan in 1862. He served on the common pleas bench prior to entering congress. He is living in quiet retirement at his home in Carroll county in the closing year of the century.

JOHN O'NEILL.

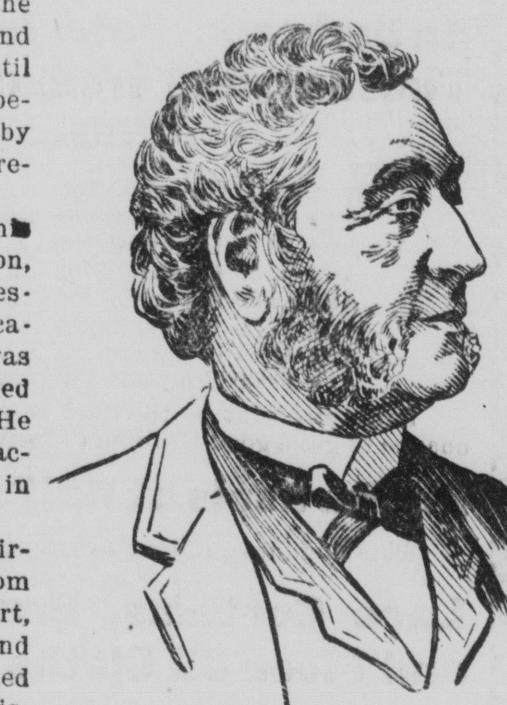

John O'Neill of Zanesville was among the brightest men who ever came to the bar in that section of the state, and had but few rivals anywhere as an advocate or as a profound reasoner before the courts. His oratorical powers were not only of the highest order, but had the forceful quality of concentration of thought and vividness of expression. In the heyday of his brilliant powers he could compress more eloquence and pointed statements into an address of half an hour than any man at the bar, and he seldom consumed more than that length of time in his greatest forensic efforts.

He was born in Philadelphia, December 17, 1822, removed to Frederick, Maryland, and afterward to Zanesville, where he entered the law office of Richard Stillwell, was admitted to the bar, and entered upon the practice of his profession soon after attaining his majority, and still remains one of the ornaments of the Zanesville bar, respected and trusted by all, and so continued until the close of the century.

He was elected as a Democrat to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Thirteenth district, Muskingum, Licking, Coshocton and Knox counties, and served but a single term in congress, where he acquitted himself with great credit.

In 1863 he was elected to the Sixty-sixth general assembly as a senator from the combined Fifteenth and Sixteenth Senatorial districts, and was elected to the Sixty-seventh two years later and chosen president pro tem. at its organization.

EPHRAIM R. ECKLEY.

General Ephraim R. Eckley, a prominent citizen of Carroll county, was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, Dec. 9, 1812, and in addition to local trusts, was honored with many public positions by the voters of his county and district, and discharged all the duties imposed upon him with rare fidelity. He was a Whig, and afterward a leading Republican. In the civil war he was colonel of the Twenty-sixth O. V. I., and was made a brigadier general.

He was a member of the state senate in the Forty-second general assembly and was successively re-elected up to the Forty-ninth, and was a member of the house from Carroll county in the Fifty-first.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Seventeenth district, Carroll, Columbiana, Stark and Jefferson counties, and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth in 1864 and the Fortieth in 1866 from the same district. Both in the legislature and in congress he was an efficient and painstaking legislator. He served under General Rosecrans during the civil war in 1861, and under General Sheridan in 1862. He served on the common pleas bench prior to entering congress. He is living in quiet retirement at his home in Carroll county in the closing year of the century.

JOHN O'NEILL.

John O'Neill of Zanesville was among the brightest men who ever came to the bar in that section of the state, and had but few rivals anywhere as an advocate or as a profound reasoner before the courts. His oratorical powers were not only of the highest order, but had the forceful quality of concentration of thought and vividness of expression. In the heyday of his brilliant powers he could compress more eloquence and pointed statements into an address of half an hour than any man at the bar, and he seldom consumed more than that length of time in his greatest forensic efforts.

He was born in Philadelphia, December 17, 1822, removed to Frederick, Maryland, and afterward to Zanesville, where he entered the law office of Richard Stillwell, was admitted to the bar, and entered upon the practice of his profession soon after attaining his majority, and still remains one of the ornaments of the Zanesville bar, respected and trusted by all, and so continued until the close of the century.

He was elected as a Democrat to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Thirteenth district, Muskingum, Licking, Coshocton and Knox counties, and served but a single term in congress, where he acquitted himself with great credit.

In 1833 he was elected to the Sixty-sixth general assembly as a senator from the combined Fifteenth and Sixteenth Senatorial districts, and was elected to the Sixty-seventh two years later and chosen president pro tem. at its organization.

The omnibus, driven by a man named Peters, was returning to Slatington from a funeral the occupants had been attending at Cherryville.

The coach belonged to Henry Bittner, of Slatington, and the dead and injured were nearly all relatives of Sophia Schoeffe, at whose obsequies they had been present. The train was a special, and consisted of an engine and one car.

At the point where the collision occurred there is a sharp curve in the road, and the omnibus came along at a good rate of speed, the occupants unconscious of any impending danger. As the bus swung around the curve the engine and car came in sight.

It was too late to stop either the bus or the train, and as the driver of the former whipped up the four horses to cross the track ahead of the train the latter crashed into its middle.

The occupants were thrown in all directions, bruised and bleeding. The 14 dead were killed outright. Physicians and a special train were sent for, and the injured were taken to South Bethlehem.

OHIO IN CONGRESS FROM 1803 TO 1901.

JOHN F. MCKINNEY.

John F. McKinney of Piqua was a prominent lawyer in Miami county and one of the Democratic state leaders. He served two terms in congress and was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Fourth district, composed of Miami, Darke, Shelby, Logan and Campbell counties, and was elected to the Forty-second in 1870 from the same district. He was a political organizer of more than ordinary ability, and was chairman of the Democratic state committee for some years.

He was a man of great force of character, and exercised great influence in Miami county and throughout the Miami valley. He was born in Piqua, Miami county, April 12, 1827, and is living in the opening months of 1900. While always a strong partisan in his devotion to the Democratic party he was able to keep partisan sentiment within reasonable bounds during the days of the Civil war, and thus aided essentially in the rehabilitation of the organization. His counsel to his political associates was always eagerly listened to and generally followed. He was a man of powerful physique and commanding presence. He still resides at Piqua, Miami county.

WELLS A. HUTCHINS.

One of the most prominent attorneys in southern Ohio, represented Scioto county in the Fiftieth general assembly as a member of the house. He was a Democrat, but overcame a very large adverse Republican majority.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Eleventh district, Scioto, Adams, Lawrence, Gallia, Jackson and Vinton. This district was Republican by several thousand, but Mr. Hutchins overcame the adverse majority without seeming effort. He was a man of pleasing address, unusual oratorical powers, and a great lawyer and advocate. He was born in Hartford, Ohio, Oct. 8, 1818.

WILLIAM JOHNSON.

William Johnson of Richland county served a single term in the national house. He was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Eighth district, consisting of the counties of Richland, Morrow, Marion, Delaware and Union. He was born in Ireland in 1819, and died in Mansfield, Ohio, May 8, 1866.

WILLIAM E. FINCK.

William E. Finck was born at Somerset, formerly, and at that time, the county seat of Perry county, in the year 1822, and there he continued to reside during the remainder of the century, held in the highest esteem by all who knew him for his many traits of typical American citizenship. He was largely educated at St. Joseph's college, near his native town, one of the pioneer colleges of Ohio.

He was fitted by nature, as he was by education, for the legal profession, and was admitted to the bar in 1843. He was shortly afterward made prosecuting attorney of the county, by appointment, and quickly came to be recognized as a lawyer, in the lower courts and in the supreme court of the state. A most genial gentleman and an orator of unrivaled powers, he was popular to a degree but seldom attained.

He was originally a Whig in politics, attended all the Whig national conventions as a delegate from 1844 to 1852, but in 1854 left the Whig party because of the secret methods of what was popularly known as the Know Nothings, and allied himself with the Democratic party, and was one of its ablest advocates ever after to the close of the century.

He represented the Fifteenth Senatorial district, Perry and Muskingum counties, in the Fiftieth and Fifty-fifth general assemblies, and was the Democratic candidate for attorney general and supreme judge, under the second constitution, but failed of election.

In 1862 he was elected as a Democrat to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Twelfth district, Perry, Fairfield, Pickaway, Hocking, Ross and Pike counties, and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth from the same district in 1864, and was elected to the Forty-third in 1874 from the Twelfth district.

composed of the counties of Perry, Fairfield, Pickaway and Franklin, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of H. J. Jewett. In 1850 he ran as the Whig candidate against James M. Gaylord, Democrat, in the Thirteenth district, and so great was his popularity that he came within a few votes of being elected against an immense adverse Democratic majority. In congress he took a high rank among the members; and was given a place on theiciary and other important committees of the house.

FRANCIS C. LEBLOND.

Francis C. Leblond was born in Knox county, Ohio, Feb. 14, 1821, and educated himself for a period, during which he saved sufficient money out of his earnings to take a course in the Norwalk academy. He studied law and supported himself by teaching until he was admitted to the bar in 1844, being examined in the supreme court by Edwin M. Stanton, afterward secretary of war.

His examination indicated his thorough mastery of the profession, and bespoke him the brilliant professional career which followed. He located in Celina, Mercer county, and was made prosecuting attorney and called to other important local trusts. He spent the remainder of his life in active practice at Celina, and was held in the highest esteem.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirteenth congress as a Democrat from the Fifth district, Mercer, Van Wert, Allen, Auglaize, Hardin, Hancock and Wyandot counties, and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth from the same district, and then voluntarily retired to the more congenial pursuits of life. As a congressman he displayed marked abilities.

WARSHPs COLLIDED.

Torpedo-Boat Sunk During French Maneuvers—Probably 50 Lives Were Lost.

Paris, Aug. 13.—During maneuvers of the French fleet off Cape St. Vincent a collision occurred between the first class battleship Brennus, flying the flag of Admiral Fournier, commander of the fleet, and the torpedo-boat destroyer Framme.

The Framme sank immediately. The accident was due to the fact that the Framme turned to the right when ordered to the left.

Details thus far received are very meager; but only a small portion of the crew, consisting of four officers and 58 men, were saved. It is said that no fewer than 50 were lost, and great anxiety is felt here. The Framme, which was of 313 tons' displacement, was a recent addition to the French navy.

One of Forbes' Scoops.

The following story illustrates the late Archibald Forbes' cleverness in getting his news reports in ahead of his fellow correspondents:

Here is a little scene: Time, near midnight, after a hard day's work. Everybody done up. "Hello, Jones," says Smith. "There's Forbes already asleep, like brass." "By Jove, yes," quoth Jones (incipient snore from Forbes). "It would take ten horses to wake him up. I'll turn in," says Jones. "Time enough to get our stuff off tomorrow, eh?" "Right you are," responds Smith.

In ten minutes the wearied warrior scribes are dead asleep. Forbes rises cautiously, passing out like a ghost, sits him down in a hidden corner with the stump of a tallow candle, writes like a whirlwind for a couple of hours, finishes with the last flicker of his dip, saddles a horse, off he goes helter skelter across the country, gallops for an hour, delivers his letter, gallops back, is in bed by 4, sleeps this time "like brass" and no mistake.

"Hello, lazy bones," exclaims Smith at 7 a. m., shaking the sleeper. "Time to be up, old man," adds Jones. "What are you up to?" quoth Forbes drowsily. "We are thinking of getting our stuff off." "The devil you are! Why hurry? Let's have another snooze."

At last Smith and Jones get their stuff off and in three days discover to their bewilderment that they were 24 hours behindhand. Very provoking to Smith and Jones. But if Forbes had been the victim of the little ruse he would have been the first to laugh over it and to congratulate his successful competitor.

Couldn't See the Joke.

Once Offenbach graciously accepted the invitation of some friends to visit them in Etretat. As his hosts were waiting for him at the hotel, one of them, who was very intimate with the composer, suggested:

The idea was taken up and developed. One of the party possessed a collection of old weapons. This was ransacked, and some two dozen young fellows were soon equipped as halberdiers. Another mounted a donkey and waved the flag of the club.

When Offenbach's carriage came in sight, a drum beat, the halberdiers presented arms and fireworks were set off from the balcony at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

As the composer stepped to the ground a venerable old man approached and presented to him the key of the hotel on a silver platter.

Offenbach, vain as a peacock and accustomed to all sorts of queer receptions, entirely failed to see the joke, though it was as broad as anything in "The Grand Duchess" or "La Belle Helene." He took it all seriously as a tribute to his genius, and, with tears in his eyes and in a voice that shook with emotion, he murmured:

"Gentlemen, this is too much, too much."

God Will Attend to the Rest.

Wealth and scholarship are not passports into the kingdom of God. They may add a grace to the redeemed, but they are not a means of grace. The rich and cultured sinner is as vile before God as the poor woman of the streets. God is no respecter of persons. Jesus was not seeking respectable sinners to build up a respectable church. God pity the pastor who is doing that! He was seeking the lost. This is also our proper work. If we go for and bring in the lost, rich or poor, cultured or ignorant, God will attend to the rest.—Lutheran Observer.

IRISH TURNS AND TWISTS.

The Unconscious Humor That Crops Out In the Green Isle.

The author of "Irish Life and Character" says truly that one has only to mix with an Irish crowd to hear many a laughable expression, quite innocently uttered. As the Duke and Duchess of York were leaving Dublin in 1897, amid enthusiastic cheering, an old woman remarked:

"Ah! Isn't it the fine reception they're gettin', goin' away?"

In 1892 Dublin university celebrated its tercentenary, and crowds of visitors were attracted to the city. Two laborers, rejoiced at the general prosperity, expressed their feelings.

"Well, Tim," said one, "thim tar-cintinaries does a dale for the thrade of Dublin, and no mistake."

"Oh, faix they do!" said the other. "And whin, with the blessin of God, we get home rule, sure we can have as manny of thim as we plase."

An old woman, seeing a man pulling a young calf roughly along the road, exclaimed:

"Oh, you bla'guard! That's no way to thrate a fellow crather."

"Sure," said a laborer to a young lady who was urging him to send his children to school, "I'd do anything for such a sweet, gentlemanly lady as yourself."

Again, the laborers on a large estate decided that it would be more convenient for them if they could be paid every week instead of every fortnight. One of their number was sent to place their proposition before the land agent, and this was his statement:

"If you please, sir, it's me desire, and it is also every other man's desire, that we resave out fortnight's pay every week."

An exasperated sergeant, drilling a squad of recruits, called to them at last:

"Halt!" Just come over here, all ye, and look at yourselves. It's a fine line ye're keepin', isn't it?"

After.

Willie-Pa, did Adam and Eve kick much when they was t'run out of the garden?

Pa—Well, no; not just then, but they raised Cain afterward. Now go to bed.

Word has been received from Will Mayer and family and Walter Simpson, who are making a tour of Europe. The letter stated that they have left Liverpool for Paris and expect to start for home August 30 or September 6.

Kyan & Rinehart have completed their original contract on Fourth street and have commenced paving the street from North alley to the foot of the hill. The contractors would have made a record on the street, but were held back by the city.

There was a splendid audience at the First Presbyterian church last night. Rev. A. B. Marshall delivered an eloquent address, strong in spiritual strength. Rev. Platts occupied the pulpit with Dr. Marshall and led in the opening prayer. Handshaking was the order of the night after the services were over, the congregation being glad to see their old pastor. Rev. Marshall looks well; the Iowa atmosphere evidently agrees with him.

Torpedo-Boat Sunk During French Maneuvers—Probably 50 Lives Were Lost.

Paris, Aug. 13.—During maneuvers of the French fleet off Cape St. Vincent a collision occurred between the first class battleship Brennus, flying the flag of Admiral Fournier, commander of the fleet, and the torpedo-boat destroyer Framme.

The Framme sank immediately. The accident was due to the fact that the Framme turned to the right when ordered to the left.

Details thus far received are very meager; but only a small portion of the crew, consisting of four officers and 58 men, were saved. It is said that no fewer than 50 were lost, and great anxiety is felt here. The Framme, which was of 313 tons' displacement, was a recent addition to the French navy.

One of Forbes' Scops.

The following story illustrates the late Archibald Forbes' cleverness in getting his news reports in ahead of his fellow correspondents:

Here is a little scene: Time, near midnight, after a hard day's work. Everybody done up. "Hello, Jones," says Smith. "There's Forbes already asleep, like brass." "By Jove, yes," quoth Jones (incipient snore from Forbes). "It would take ten horses to wake him up. I'll turn in," says Jones. "Time enough to get our stuff off tomorrow, eh?" "Right you are," responds Smith.

In ten minutes the wearied warrior scribes are dead asleep. Forbes rises cautiously, passing out like a ghost, sits him down in a hidden corner with the stump of a tallow candle, writes like a whirlwind for a couple of hours, finishes with the last flicker of his dip, saddles a horse, off he goes helter-skelter across the country, gallops for an hour, delivers his letter, gallops back, is in bed by 4, sleeps this time "like brass" and no mistake.

"Hello, lazy bones," exclaims Smith at 7 a. m., shaking the sleeper. "Time to be up, old man," adds Jones. "What are you up to?" quoth Forbes drowsily. "We are thinking of getting our stuff off." "The devil you are! Why hurry? Let's have another snooze."

stuff off and in three days discover to their bewilderment that they were 24 hours behindhand. Very provoking to Smith and Jones. But if Forbes had been the victim of the little ruse he would have been the first to laugh over it and to congratulate his successful competitor.

Couldn't See the Joke.

Once Offenbach graciously accepted the invitation of some friends to visit them in Etretat. As his hosts were waiting for him at the hotel, one of them, who was very intimate with the composer, suggested:

The idea was taken up and developed. One of the party possessed a collection of old weapons. This was ransacked, and some two dozen young fellows were soon equipped as halberdiers. Another mounted a donkey and waved the flag of the club.

When Offenbach's carriage came in sight, a drum beat, the halberdiers presented arms and fireworks were set off from the balcony at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

As the composer stepped to the ground a venerable old man approached and presented to him the key of the hotel on a silver platter.

Offenbach, vain as a peacock and accustomed to all sorts of queer receptions, entirely failed to see the joke, though it was as broad as anything in "The Grand Duchess" or "La Belle Helene." He took it all seriously as a tribute to his genius, and, with tears in his eyes and in a voice that shook with emotion, he murmured:

God Will Attend to the Rest.

Wealth and scholarship are not passports into the kingdom of God. They may add a grace to the redeemed, but they are not a means of grace. The rich and cultured sinner is as vile before God as the poor woman of the streets. God is no respecter of persons. Jesus was not seeking respectable sinners to build up a respectable church. God pity the pastor who is doing that! He was seeking the lost. This is also our proper work. If we go for and bring in the lost, rich or poor, cultured or ignorant, God will attend to the rest.—Lutheran Observer.

THE EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., MONDAY, AUGUST 13, 1900.

OPENING OF THE FALL CAMPAIGN

DR. MARSHALL, IOWA, SPEAKS

Rev. Platts, Former Secretary, Also Delivers an Eloquent Address.

GLADDEN AND SWIFT PRESENT

Revs. Marshall, Swift, Gladden and Platts took part in the services at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Sunday afternoon. Prof. Laughlin conducted the song service, and this was a very pleasing feature.

"Rescue the Perishing" was given as the opening selection, and the men present gave it as if they meant it, and as if they intended to lend a helping hand in the feature of saving men from drunkenness, sin and shame, in the name of the Master.

Rev. Swift, of Beaver Falls, led in a touching prayer for God's blessing on the meeting. Rev. Platts read the scripture lesson, third chapter of First John. Chairman Hill made announcement that this was the first service of the fall campaign of the Y. M. C. A., that there is a great work to do in East Liverpool among young men. He stated that he had made a jaunt around the Diamond just before the meeting, inviting young men to attend the service, and that he found four young men so drunk that they could not understand his invitation and could not read the printed slips he gave them.

Rev. Marshall spoke of the young men in connection with Christianity; told of the wonderful work being done in this line in his present pastorate at Des Moines, Iowa. He told of the special efforts made directly for the saving of young men; of the fact that God has added His blessing in a powerful manner and that now there are more men than women attending the regular services.

"The man with the message." He is not easily daunted; he meets difficulties and overcomes them. McCall, when he first went to Paris, knew just about enough of the French language to say "God loves you;" and yet he filled Paris with God's message. Carey, in India, met with opposition from the natives; but he was full of the message, and God granted wonderful results and blessings. The man with the message is almost infallible; he is strong just in proportion as the Master is in his heart and life. God gave Martin Luther a message, "the just shall live by faith." The doctrines which Luther had been taught among the monks were full of wrong and error; but God opened Luther's eyes, and he walked in the light of the truth of the message; that which harmonized with the message he accepted; that which did not harmonize with it he rejected.

Chief Justice John Marshall, serving on the bench in the days of George Washington, gave guidance to the law students of that day and to the students and courts even to the present day. He had no precedent on which to base his ideas of the control of a great republic; he had caught the great and fundamental truth of the rights of the individual—a government by the people and for the people; this thought controlled him and controlled Washington as well.

"You know certain men who are wonderful in their power in the Christian life; they seldom make mistakes, but seem to have an intuitive knowledge of how and when to do the right thing. They simply belong to the class known as 'the man with the message.' They have dedicated their lives to the service of God; their hearts are so filled with the light of the message that they rarely make mistakes.

"Have you heard of the 'George Republic,' situated in New York state? The projector and founder makes it the business of his life to lift up boys and girls; to rescue them from the pitfalls and snares of the great and wicked city of New York, take them out to the great farm, surround them with good influences and pure life and make them good and noble and useful citizens; outcast boys and girls transformed into noble men and women, useful and helpful members of society. George walks in the light of his God-given message.

"Such men as George get next to needy lives and hearts. It is a wonderful thing to get next to people, to get hold of the poor and the needy and hold them up, to help them and strengthen them.

"Can you fill the place of 'the man with the message' to the young men of East Liverpool? This is really my question of questions for your consideration today. Give yourself to God aright, without let or hindrance and he will give you the message in fullest power, with full directions, and you will not be easily deterred, daunted or overcome; become a willing instrument in the hands of God, and he will speak through you in word and act and life."

Rev. Platts made a brief and eloquent address, taking as his topic the physical, mental and spiritual characteristics of a true Christian manhood.

Rev. Gladden pronounced the benediction. Services on Sunday afternoon next, at 4 o'clock. You will be very welcome.

HE HAD TROUBLE WITH A FAKIR

Henry Smith Played a Game, Lost and Then Kicked Up a Fuss.

HE WAS GATHERED IN

And Taken to the City Where It Cost Him $5.60 For His Fun.

THE BUSINESS OF POLICE COURT

A colored man named Henry Smith played a game in the Diamond Saturday night, and because he could not win the high prize, got mad and kicked over the machine.

The fakir had secured a license for his trick, and everything was apparently fair and square. Smith was after the gold watch and had played in about 60 cents without success, beyond a few pieces of cheap jewelry, when he became angry and smashed the fakir's game, rendering it useless.

He was arrested by Chief Thompson and Officer Woods and taken to city hall. He told the mayor he had been done up and wanted the fakir arrested.

Mayor Davidson made an investigation and found that everything was regular. Smith was fined $5.60, which he paid.

Word was received at city hall Saturday night that F. W. Boulton, who lives in Pink alley, was abusing a small daughter, and Chief Thompson and Officer Gill repaired to the scene at once.

When they arrived Boulton was in bed and the officers were refused admission. This was no great hindrance, as the police hoisted a window and Boulton was hustled to jail.

Boulton was given a hearing by Mayor Davidson and fined $9.60. He paid up and was allowed to go.

Dan Ritter was arrested last night by Officer Davidson and a charge of drunk and disorderly placed against him. He is still in jail.

John Kountz was arrested at his saloon in West End by Officers Dawson, Davidson and McCullough Saturday evening at 6 o'clock on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was brought to jail in the patrol. The mayor fined him $6.60, which he paid.

Jim Penny is still in jail, the mayor not having decided what to do with him.

LAW DON'T ALLOW IT

And the County Commissioners Are Promptly Turning Down All Such Claims.

The commissioners are not authorized to allow any compensation for any extra time, except to an assistant which has been chosen by the appraiser on the approval of Auditor Adams.

From some of the larger districts the appraisers refused to appoint the assistant and are now sending in claims for work done over hours and on Sundays, and these are being promptly turned down, as they cannot be legally allowed.

THE GOVERNOR WILL SPEAK

Central Committee Made Arrangements to Give Him a Royal Welcome to the City.

A BRASS BAND ENGAGED

EVERYBODY SHOULD TURN OUT

Governor George K. Nash will be given a hearty welcome when he arrives in the city Wednesday evening.

The Republican central committee met at city hall Saturday evening and made preparations for the affair.

William Randolph, John Rark and William Hall were selected as a committee to secure Haines' band for the occasion.

The band will not meet the governor at the train, but will play at the residence of Colonel John N. Taylor upon his arrival there.

There will be no parade, but everybody is expected to turn out and make the evening a success from every standpoint, and there is every indication that Governor Nash will be given a rousing welcome when he greets the East Liverpool people for the first time.

W. V. Blake was selected as the person to introduce the governor to the people, and Chairman Owen will look after the duty of receiving him.

INJURIOUS CHEMICALS

Found in the MILK Furnished by the Salem Dealers—No Arrests.

Owing to the great number of complaints which were constantly pouring in upon the Salem board of health, it was ordered that the milk sold by the dealers in that city be chemically analyzed. The result of the analysis fully justified the suspicions of the complainants, as foreign substances were found in at least five samples of the milk tested.

A traveling salesman had sold to some of the dairymen a compound known as "freezaline," which, he averred, could not be detected by a chemical analysis.

The compound was used to prevent the milk from souring during hot weather. No arrests will be made, this being the first offense, unless the dealers continue to use the stuff and all have been warned.

The Condition of Trade. China, Glass and Lamps.

As the season advances there is more business doing and among other features of the market it is noticeable that jobbers are beginning to purchase more freely. Their orders are, however, for the most part to sort up stocks, which had become considerably depleted in the last few months. They are buying carefully and conservatively, and their orders are for such quantities as they think they are pretty certain to dispose of soon.

The traveling salesmen are busy on the road and are doing much by their efforts to stimulate trade. The reports from all outside points are encouraging and indicate the prospect of a large fall business.

The factories, both east and west, are in full operation and the new plants in course of construction are now being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Some of the manufacturers are reported to have orders on their books which it will take them some time to fill and all are busy on new shapes and patterns, of which there will be an unusually large variety offered the coming fall.

HARRY BUXTON

Will Probably Accept the Pastorate of the Toronto Methodist Episcopal Church.

Toronto Commercial.

Rev. Harry Buxton, a resident of East Liverpool, and member of the Georgian conference, will in all probability accept the pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal church in this city, to fill the unexpired term of Rev. McClure.

A member of the church officiary stated this morning that, while the matter had not been definitely settled, there was little doubt but that Rev. Buxton would accept the appointment.

Rex. Buxton will preach at both morning and evening services tomorrow.

WM. ALLISON

Arrested Yesterday, but Was Afterward Released, Being Restored the Property.

About a week ago William Allison procured a guitar from the wife of Abe Burlingame under false representation, stating that he had been sent after it by Burlingame.

Mr. Burlingame swore out a warrant for Allison's arrest and yesterday Constable Powell took him in. Some time after the warrant was issued Allison returned the instrument and the case was dismissed by Justice McCarron.

WITHIN THIRTY DAYS.

The Total Population of the United States Will Be Announced.

The government has announced that the population of the country will be known within 30 days.

Fifty-four thousand enumerators were employed in taking the census, and returns from more than half of them have been counted, the remainder being disposed of at the rate of 2,000 per day.

A great deal of trouble is being experienced with the returns from New York. Nearly all had to be sent back. This was due principally to carelessness on the part of the enumerators. In some cases the enumerator could not secure names, particularly in New York city, where many families were away.

Taking a Rest.

China, Glass and Lamps.

The Wheeling Pottery company shut down for a short time recently and made a few necessary repairs. They are now running along in their usual brisk manner.

Charles W. Franzheim, president and general manager of the three potteries, has been a very busy man for some time and is now taking a much needed rest, having gone with his family to recuperate. He will remain with them about two weeks when he will return and get into harness again. Business is fairly good with them for this season of the year.

Shaffer Going to China.

MINISTERS WERE SAFE

AS LATE AS AUGUST 5.

Messages Received From Sir Robert Hart and the Italian Minister in Pekin.

Rome, Aug. 13.—The Italian foreign office received a dispatch from the Italian minister in Pekin, Marquis Salvago Raggi, dated August 5, containing the following:

"Shots exchanged between the defenders of the legation and the Chinese. One killed and two wounded. We have no news of the allies since July 30. We hope they will not delay advance to Pekin."

FOUR KILLED IN STORM.

Nine Persons Struck by Lightning—Five May Die—Another May Be Insane if Living.

New York, Aug. 13.—In the storm which passed over this section four persons were killed in Queensboro and two others stand very little chance of recovery from the injuries they received.

New York, Aug. 13.—Nine persons who hurriedly sought shelter under some trees and bushes in the woods in the Bronx section during the storm were struck by the same flash of lightning. The persons injured were: James Brown, a Hungarian tailor, of this city, his wife and five children and Bertha Lescowitz and Bertha Silverman, neighbors of the Browns. All the injured persons were taken to the Fordham hospital. The attending physicians thought Mrs. Brown, two of her children and Bertha Silverman could not possibly live. The Silverman girl was the worst injured of all. Of Bertha Lescowitz the physicians said she would die or become insane.

7,000 MASSACRED.

Artificial Sponges.

Artificial sponges are made in Germany by treating pure cellulose with zinc chloride. The product swells in water and on drying becomes hard. But to prevent this action alkalihaloids are used. A pasty mass is thus obtained, which, being treated with rock salt, is then placed in a mold. When removed, it appears to be traversed by canals in all directions, and after having been washed in alcohol and water the sponge is ready for use.

A NEW LOCAL MAY BE FORMED

In Refusing to Co-operate
With Brotherhood.

BOTH SIDES ARE WAITING

To See What the Labor Committee
Will Do When Absent Members Return.

EX-VICE PRES. RHEAD TALKS

The Trenton True American of Saturday has the following in regard to the pottery situation in that city:

At a meeting of the hollowware pressers' local of the Brotherhood of Operative Potters, the declaration of the pressers in favor of the uniform wage scale was unanimously reaffirmed.

The pressers expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the list, as prepared by the Pittsburgh conference, claiming that it would be a great benefit to the entire pottery industry.

Nothing developed in the situation yesterday, the return of two members of the manufacturers' committee on labor being awaited before further action is taken. These absent members will be in town next Tuesday.

The Brotherhood, which is responsible for the list, is very anxious that it should go into effect and it is possible that if the jigermen persist in opposing it, a new union to include that branch of the industry will be formed.

The jigermen are now without the pale of the Brotherhood, having broken away some time ago, and formed an independent organization.

If they are not willing to work in cooperation with the Brotherhood, which is conceded to be the representative organization of the operatives, it will then be up to the Brotherhood to take some drastic course.

Henry Rhead, late vice president of the Brotherhood, yesterday sent a request to the True American to have an impression resulting from his remarks before the kilnmen, corrected.

The remarks of Mr. Rhead were published in yesterday's issue, and
among other things he was reported
as saying that some "good union men"
had not paid a cent to the organization
in 15 months.

In order that this might not be interpreted as a slap at the men in the union, Mr. Rhead requests that it be explained that his remarks were aimed
at the non-union men.

It appears that after failure to pay dues for three months, the constitution of the union provides that members shall be dropped. While the rule is not rigidly enforced, there are some
men who fail to pay dues for a year or more, but yet claim to be union
men.

"My remarks," says Mr. Rhead,
"were intended for men who are careless and ignore the union, but like to have its benefits. These are generally
the first men to call on the union in

TRENTON JIGGERMEN

Hold a Meeting and Decide to Admit
All Branches of the Trade to
Their Union.

Trenton Potters' Journal.

Readers of the Journal will remember that we said there was a movement on foot among many kilnmen to form a separate organization, in case
the uniform list should receive official sanction.

Straws tell which way the wind is blowing, as the following clearly demonstrates:

The jigermen and dishmakers'

union No. 1 held their usual weekly
meeting on Friday evening, and disposed of considerable routine and much important new business. Recently
there has been many applications
for membership, and among the lot were those from other branches of the industry.

Finally the meeting decided to throw
open the charter for the reception of
all branches of the general ware industry, including kilnmen.

This step was taken on account of
the great dissatisfaction in other branches of the trade regarding the
N. B. O. P. It will be noted that the jigermen and dishmakers' local union
now embraces the turners and handlers branches, and is therefore what is

A Uniform Size List.

Trenton Potter's Journal.

Talking about the uniform list a gentleman close to the manufacturers said yesterday that in his opinion it
was a matter of much greater importance to introduce a scale to fix a uniform limit for sizes, than to devote
wage scale.

He said that in Beaver Falls, Pa., for instance, they make a plate that is fully a size bigger than the corresponding size made in Trenton. The same
is true in not a few other lines of goods. The operatives get nothing extra for that extra labor, and it was a reduction. There was a field for missionary labor, much more productive
of good to all concerned.

How Would This Work?

An exchange asserts that the ancient Assyrians would take contractors
who laid poor pavements and permit
indignant citizens to hurl the defective portions of their work at them.
While the archaeological authority for
this is hazy, there is no doubt that
such simple and straightforward measures secured for the ancients pavements which lasted longer than necessary.

Foresters' Picnic.

FIRM REPLY TO CHINA

Offer of Li's Mediation Met by Reiterated Demands.

BRAVE MESSAGE FROM CONGER.

Expressed His Ability to Hold Out Until
General Chaffee Should Come to His
to Negotiate Peace With the Powers.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Secretary
Adee, by direction of President Mc-Kinley, presented to Minister Wu for transmission to his government the
reply of the United States to the imperial edict appointing Li Hung Chang
envoy to negotiate with the powers
for a cessation of hostilities.

In effect it was a reiteration of the
demands previously made by the United States upon China, coupled with a vigorous intimation that no negotiations will be entered into until the Chinese government shall have complied with those demands.

As transmitted to the imperial government by the acting secretary of state through Minister Wu, the demands, in brief, were:

That the Chinese government give
assurance that the foreign ministers
are alive, and if so, in what condition.

That the ministers be placed in free
communication with their governments, firing upon the legations to cease, and all dangers to their lives
and liberty be removed.

That the imperial authorities place
themselves in communication with the relief expedition, so that the legations may be liberated, foreigners protected and order restored.

Until these demands have been ac-
ceded to, it is regarded as highly improbable that the government of the United States or any of the European governments, all of which have
made practically the same demands
upon China, will consent to a cessation of hostile demonstrations, which
are being conducted, at least so far as this government is concerned, with the sole purpose of succoring the besieged legationaries in the Chinese capital.

Washington, Aug. 13.—A belated message from Minister Conger, sent
to the war department by General Chaffee expressed his ability to "hold on" until General Chaffee should come to his rescue. All the power of this government will be exerted to get that relief to him and other imprisoned legationaries at the earliest possible moment.

Acting Secretary Adee made public
the following statement:

"The department of state makes public the following imperial decree
appointing Viceroy Li Hung Chang
as envoy plenipotentiary to propose a cessation of hostile demonstrations and
negotiate with the powers, a copy of which was delivered by Mr. Wu to
the acting secretary of state this (Sunday) morning at 10:30 o'clock.

"An imperial decree forwarded by
the privy council at Pekin, under date
of the 14th day of the 7th moon, August 8, to Governor Yuan at Tsu Nan, Shantung, who transmitted it on the 17th day of the same moon (August 11)
to the taotai at Shanghai, by whom it was retransmitted to Minister Wu,
who received it on the night of the same day (August 11).

"The imperial edict, as transmitted
by the privy council, is as follows:

"In the present conflict between
some misunderstanding on the part of
foreign nations, and also some want
of proper management on the part of some local authorities. A clash of arms is followed by calamitous results
and causes a rupture of friendly relations, which will ultimately do no

France Declines to Do So as Long as the Way Is Beset With Rabid
Anti-foreigners.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The tsung li yamen
forwarded through the Chinese minister in Paris, Yu Yeng, a message to
the French government, complaining
of the tardiness of the foreign ministers in Pekin in replying to the offer
to the Chinese government to conduct them under escort. The message proceeded to say that the tsung li yamen
declined to be responsible for any casualties which might follow these delays and insisted that the European governments order their representatives to leave Pekin.

To this M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, sent the following reply:

"No order to depart from Pekin will be given to depart as long as the roads are unsafe. If a casualty occurs
the responsibility is with the Chinese government. Its plain duty is to protect foreign ministers more than its own.

"If it is true that the Chinese government has great difficulty in defending them and in defending itself

against rebels it should order its
troops to stand aside before the allied forces. This would render free the road from Tien Tsin to the capital
and would accomplish the work of protection, which is encumbered.

"The Chinese government should understand that the only means of
proving the sincerity of its designs
and of limiting its responsibilities is
a cessation in the political campaign
in the obstacles in the way of such
an arrangement."

Remember the motto: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." We have only commenced to fight. The God of Right is with us.

PRETTY MEN.

As a rule, they are the most egotistic asses on earth. The sissys never amount to much in the battle of life. They are not formed from the right kind of material.

INDEPENDENCE.

ence with stubbornness, and imagine that they are one and the same thing, when there is as much difference as there is between daylight and darkness—between heaven and hades. George Washington was independent. Balaam's mount was stubborn.

THE HEAT.

It was intense yesterday, especially when directly in contact with the sun's rays. Dogs would leave their masters, seek a shady spot momentarily, take a rest and then hasten after their owners, only to repeat the action time after time. The rain came as a rich blessing.

KILLING HIM.

What is killing him? Cigarettes. Do you mean it? Certainly. Where is he living? Right here in East Liverpool. His appetite has failed him. He cannot sleep. His days and nights are days and nights of wretchedness. He is but a mere boy, being murdered by the use of cigarettes. This is no fancy sketch, no figment of the brain, no mere creation of the imagination. His friends will read this and know we mean their boy—their relative. How soon will your boy be murdered?

PRAYER.

Prayer is a mighty lever when properly applied. Practice of prayer is an engine of almost irresistible power. What is the practice of prayer? Simply the appreciation of the blessings which Almighty God has already granted unto us and which we have not taken advantage of. By way of direct application in connection with everyday affairs in this city of East Liverpool. We pray, very earnestly, apparently, that the open saloon may cease to exist in East Liverpool; and then we fail to make the direct application of the blessing already granted to us, in a ballot which speaks louder than words. Men have been known to pray in the churches, in stentorian tones, that "the kingdom of God might prevail here on earth," and then go out and rent their buildings for saloon purposes, simply because they could get 50 per cent more rent from the saloonists than they could get from any business man engaged in any honorable or legitimate business. When such a property owner addresses our heavenly father in prayer, asking for a blessing on his business, the following answer will certainly suit his case exactly: "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul."

FINISHED HIS WORK.

Examiner E. E. Miller Issued 288 Licenses to Stationary Engineers.

Elmer E. Miller, deputy examiner of stationary engineers for the Fifth district, which includes Stark county, has finished his work and issued 288 licenses and rejected nine applicants.

For every license a fee of $2 is paid, so it will be seen that the deputy turned in $576, which goes to the fund covering the expense of operating the department.

The total receipts for the month aggregate over $4,000.

Only a Rumor.

There are several rumors of capital in the hands of Tom Price, McElvain, of Pittsburgh, S. B. Goucher and the Steubenville Supply company buying up vacant lots at Toronto and building an immense white ware pottery, says the Steubenville Gazette.

They Are Safe.

A cablegram received in Salem by Eli French announced that his sister, also her husband, Dr. George De Vol, who was medical missionary at Nanking, China, had safely reached Yokohama, Japan.

Don't forget the No Name Hat, if you want the latest and noblest hat made. Price $2.50 and $3.00.

THE SURPRISE CLOTHING HOUSE.

A Famous Square.

There is said to be no equal in the world to the grand and imposing square of Paris, the Place de la Concorde. On one side of it is the Tuilleries, on the opposite side the Champs Elysees and on a third the river Seine. In the center stands the obelisk of Luxor, a magnificent monolith of red Egyptian granite, 74 feet high and weighing 500,000 pounds. This obelisk was one of two of the same shape and size, erected in 1350 B. C., by Rameses the Great at the entrance of the temple of Thebes. Mohammed Ali, pasha of Egypt, presented it to the French government, and in 1836 it was removed to its present position in the Place de la Concorde. The removal and erection on the new site required an outlay of £80,000 and the employment of 800 men, the obelisk being transported to France in a vessel built especially for the purpose.

The Place de la Concorde is rich in historic interest. It was there that the guillotine was erected in the "reign of terror," after the death of Louis XVI, and it was there that the signal was given for the attack on the Eastille in 1789. Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette were beheaded there in 1793, and it was the scene of great rejoicing in 1848, when France was proclaimed a republic. The Place de la Concorde has also been termed the Place Louis XV and Place de la Revolution.

Rattlesnake Poison.

"Years ago, when I was a boy at home," said a southern man, "an uncle of mine, who lived near Montgomery, was out on his plantation one day when he saw an enormous rattlesnake stretched in a furrow of a cotton field. He seized a hoe lying near by and made a pass at the monster. At the same time it struck out at him and broke off one of its fangs on the edge of the hoe blade. My uncle dispatched the snake and then picked up the fang and brought it to the house as a curiosity. It was sharp as a needle, and a faint yellow stain at the tip showed where some of the virus had exuded.

"The bit of bone lay for at least three or four years in an ebony box on my uncle's writing table in his study, when one day a stupid negro servant girl, not knowing what it was, used it to extract a splinter from her thumb. In less than an hour her whole lower arm was swollen, and she exhibited all the characteristic symptoms of snake poison.

"My uncle had studied medicine and by prompt measures saved the girl's life, but for some mysterious reason gangrene subsequently appeared in her arm, and amputation was necessary. My uncle lost no time in burning his murderous relic."

Two and Four.

"Two?" demanded the peremptory conductor as he took a quarter from the woman who had just struggled to a place on the trolley.

"No, four," she replied.

Four fares were rung sharply, and the conductor handed back 5 cents.

"That isn't right!" exclaimed the woman indignantly.

"You said you wanted to pay for four," retorted the trolley employee.

"I didn't," denied the woman. "You asked if my little boy was 2 years old, and I said no, he was 4. I suppose I'll have to pay for him if it's the rule, but I don't think it's right!"

The remainder of the sentence was lost in the discords that issued from the throat of the enraged conductor, who thrust ten pennies into the outstretched hand and retired to the rear platform to relieve his feelings more fully by refusing to stop the car for any one for ten blocks.—New York Press.

Made Its Own Funeral Toilet.

There are certain insects that have such a respect for Mrs. Grundy and are endowed with such an innate love of neatness and order that not even death, or rather decapitation, can prevent them from making one grand final toilet, which is clearly designed to give them a sedate and respectable appearance after death.

Dr. Ballion, a skilled entomologist, discovered this remarkable fact. During one of my recent horseback rides," he says, "I frequently caught one of those large flies which annoy cattle and horses so much, and I promptly got rid of it by crushing its head.

One day, instead of throwing the mutilated insect away, I placed it on the back of my hand and indolently watched it. For some seconds the insect remained motionless, but then, to my unbounded surprise, it moved its front legs forward to the place where the head should have been, and, after it had rubbed them nervously together, apparently in anguish, it began to brush its body and to smooth its wings with its hind legs. Under the gentle pressure of these limbs the body gradually became extended and the extremity curved, while the wings gradually changed their natural position and left the upper part of the body exposed.

Meanwhile the hind legs continued to brush each other from time to time.

"Naturally I watched this extraordinary sight with great interest, and, in order to see the finale, I took the insect into my study, where it lived an entire day, spending the time at the ungrateful task of making its own funeral toilet."

Couldn't Resist.

An eccentric clergyman in Cornwall had been much annoyed by the way the members of the congregation had of looking around to see late comers. After enduring it for some time he said on entering the reading desk one day: "Brethren, I regret to see that your attention is called away from your religious duties by your very natural desire to see who comes in behind you. I propose henceforth to save you the trouble by naming each person who may come late."

He then began, "Dearly beloved,"

"Mr. S., with his wife and daughter." Mr. S. looked rather surprised, but the minister, with perfect gravity, resumed. Presently he again paused, "Mr. C. and William D."

The abashed congregation kept their eyes studiously bent on their books. The service proceeded in the most orderly manner, the parson interrupting himself every now and then to name some newcomer. At last he said, still with the same perfect gravity:

"Mrs. S. in a new bonnet."

One of the most curious finds ever made from the sea was that which came to the Azores in 1858. The island of Corvo was then in the possession of two runaway British sailors. One morning there drifted ashore a craft which had evidently been frozen in the ice for a long time. It was an ancient and battered brig, without masts, bulwark or name, but the hatches were on, the cabin doors fast, and the hull was buoyant. She had little cargo, and that consisted of skins and furs in prime condition.

No papers were found in the cabin, but it was figured that she was a sealer or trader, carrying a crew of 10 or 12, and that she had been provisioned for a year. The flour was spoiled, but the beef was perfectly preserved. She had been abandoned when frozen in an iceberg and drifted for years. The date of the letter found in the forecastle showed that the brig had been abandoned nearly half a century before. The two sailors got out the furs, which eventually brought them $4,000, and two barrels of beef and then set fire to the wreck. No trace was ever found of its name or owners.

Easy Choice.

"Did you have any trouble in selecting a name for the baby?"

"None at all. There's only one rich uncle in the family,"—Richmond Dispatch.

"Much learning maketh a man sad," says one proverb, and another says, "A little learning is a dangerous thing." So what are you going to do about it?—Chicago News.

SWINGEWOOD TOOK A HORSE

TAKEN TO THE SOUTHSIDE

THERE HAS BEEN NO ARRESTS

James Swingewood and "Footy" Allison came near getting themselves into serious trouble Saturday night.

Swingewood went to the livery stable of Frank Dickey and took out a horse and traded it to Allison, who took the horse to the Southside and placed it in the livery stable at that place and left orders for the horse to be given to none but himself.

When Dickey missed the horse a search was instituted and it was discovered on the Southside.

Yesterday Dickey, accompanied by Officer Woods, went over to get the horse, and after considerable trouble succeeded, bringing it back to this city.

No arrests were made.

NEW POTTERY.

LISBON MAY GET A FIVE-KILN PLANT.

People From This City With Cash Are Said to be Back of the Enterprise.

Lisbon is still hustling for new manufacturers and the latest is a pottery. The Patriot of Saturday has the following:

We are in possession of some inside information, which we now proceed to give to our readers. Some responsible and practical men of East Liverpool will build a five-kiln pottery in our town if we will do something in the way of a bonus.

The proposition is this: They want us to raise a bonus of $10,000 cash, and then they will purchase land and lay out lots, selling them at about $75 each, and in this way raise about $10,000 more. Mark this: They ask us to raise only $10,000 and they will take care of the lot business. We believe this to be a fair and reasonable proposition, and our people ought not to hesitate a single day.

A five-kiln pottery means the employment of about 225 people and an increase in population of nearly 1,000 inhabitants. It means 150 new dwelling houses. These things are valuable to a town located like Lisbon, and a few of such enterprises will place our little city in the lead of all cities in the county.

We have the place for a big city, and nature has blessed us with plenty of pure water, splendid coal, fire clay, cement rock and building stone. No other place in the county has such natural advantages as we enjoy. Now is the time to strike. Talk this matter over between now and Monday. If you express yourselves favorable to the enterprise a meeting will be called Monday and subscriptions will be taken up at once. Act now and act for the good of the town.

ARMORED COFFINS

They Were Once Used in a Churchyard in Scotland.

In the earlier half of the nineteenth century the practice of stealing bodies from the churchyards for the purpose of sale as subjects for dissection, which was known as "body snatching," was for a time very rife.

Various plans were made to defeat the nefarious and sacrilegious proceedings of the "body snatchers," or "resurrectionists," as they were sometimes called, a very common one being the erection of two or more small watch-houses whose windows commanded the whole burying ground, and in which the friends of the deceased mounted guard for a number of nights after the funeral.

A usual method of the grave robbers was to dig down to the head of the coffin and bore in it a large round hole by means of a specially constructed center bit. It was to counteract this maneuver that the two curious coffin-like reliques now lying on either side of the door of the ruined church of Aberfoyle, in Perthshire, were constructed. They are solid masses of cast iron of enormous weight.

When an interment took place one of these massive slabs was lowered by suitable derricks, tackles and chains on to the top of the coffin, the grave was filled in, and there it was left for some considerable time. Later on the grave was opened and the iron armor plate was removed and laid aside ready for another funeral.

These contrivances still lie on the grass of the lonely little churchyard, objects of curiosity to the passing cyclist and tourist.—Scientific American.

SAID HE KILLED LANE.

WANTED MONEY FOR MARRIAGE.

Ferrell's Wedding Day Approached and He Had No Employment—His Victim Befriended Him When Murdered—Arrested at His Sweetheart's Home.

Columbus, O., Aug. 13.—Charles R. H. Ferrell, a former employee of the Adams Express company, was arrested in this city and confessed to the killing of Messenger Charles Lane and the robbery of the way safe of the Adams Express company on the Pennsylvania eastbound train which arrived in this city at midnight Friday. One thousand dollars of the money which he had stolen was recovered.

Ferrell was to have been married Thursday next to Miss Lillian Costlow, daughter of Patrick Costlow, an engineer on the Pennsylvania lines. He had been discharged from the employ of the Adams Express company about three months ago, and had not been able to secure employment. He confessed that the motive of the robbery was to secure money, of which he felt in great need on account of his approaching marriage. The money recovered he had given to Miss Costlow to keep for him, saying that it was money he had saved from his earnings. He was at the home of his fiancée and in her company when placed under arrest.

Ferrell is but 22 years old, and has a splendid physique, being 6 feet in height, with dark hair and an attractive face. When the officers took him into custody he assumed a nonchalant demeanor, but when he found that he could no longer deceive the officers he made a full confession. After his statement had been taken by Chief of Police Tyler and he was led to a cell in the police station he was in a state of nervous collapse and orders were given that he be watched closely to prevent him from doing himself bodily harm. In his confession he said that he had become desperate because of his inability to secure employment and a realization of the fact that he must have money to defray the expenses of his approaching marriage. The murder had been carefully planned, and it included the murder of Express Messenger Lane. He had no accomplices and no confidants. He knew Lane well. In fact they were friends, and he relied upon Lane's confidence to help him execute the crime. He knew that considerable money was always carried by the messenger on Pennsylvania train No. 8 between St. Louis and Columbus, and that he was certain to secure a large sum if he robbed the way safe on that train. Having provided himself with a Smith & Wesson six-shooter, .38 caliber, he went to Urbana Friday morning and waited for No. 8. When the train arrived there Ferrell went at once to the express car and told Lane that he was out of money and asked permission to ride to Columbus with him. Lane consented, never for a moment suspecting the treachery of his pretended friend. For a short time after the train left Urbana they chatted pleasantly. Lane sat in a chair in the end of the car with his back slightly turned.

When Ferrell had finally nerved himself for the crime he drew his revolver and stepped up behind Lane unobserved and fired three shots in rapid succession into the messenger's back. Lane rolled off the chair on the floor on his face, and Ferrell quickly fired the remaining shots at the prostrate body. Lane was unconscious, but Ferrell, fearing that the wounds already inflicted would not cause death, took Lane's revolver and fired two more bullets from it into the body. Ferrell then took the keys to the way safe from the pocket of the dead messenger, opened the safe, and laid Lane's revolver inside where he could reach it easily in case he was detected and needed it to defend himself. After he had taken out all the sacks containing the money packages, money orders and way bills, he placed them in a small satchel and waited until the car arrived at Plain City, where he slipped off the train. He walked about for a few minutes to regain composure, and then inquired for the hotel, which he found after a short time, a belated citizen directing him to the place. He secured a room and retired for the night without registering, a fact of which the landlord took no notice at the time, as he was half asleep. Once in his room, Ferrell proceeded to go through the packages and take out all the cash. The remainder he tied up in a bundle.

an easy matter to dispose of the latter. Lifting up the mattress of the bed he placed the revolver in a secure place in the springs. I was not so easy to dispose of the bundle of express sacks and envelopes. After thinking over the matter he concluded he could get rid of the bundle best by expressing it to a fictitious address in some distant city, knowing that it would remain there for a year at least before it would be opened if it was not intercepted. Ferrell arose early the next morning, and sauntered down to the railroad station and sat there for a time reading a book. Then he expressed the package, which he addressed to C. W. Caylor, Lockport, N. Y., bought a ticket for Columbus. When he arrived in the city he went at once to his boarding place on the North Side of the city and changed his clothes. Ferrell said he was much disturbed by the talk about the murder and robbery, which he heard upon every side, but he kept up his nerve. During the day he paid a number of bills that he owed out of the money which he had stolen and bought some clothes and other things which he needed. Saturday night he went to see Miss Costlow, and arranged to call again Sunday afternoon.

It was at Plain City last Saturday night that City Detectives O'Neill and Dundon obtained the clue that led to Ferrell's arrest. They had been at the hotel there at daylight while Ferrell was sleeping in an upper room and asked the proprietor if any strangers had registered or had been seen about the hotel. The proprietor said that he did not remember having seen any strangers. Later in the afternoon the detectives again asked the proprietor if he had seen any strangers about and he remembered then that a man who had forgot to register had stayed at the house over night and had gone away on the early morning train to Columbus.

The detectives at once searched the room and were rewarded by finding Lane's revolver where Ferrell had secreted it. They also found several waybills that had been overlooked by Ferrell in his hurry and excitement while making up the express package. The hotel keeper was able to give only an imperfect description of the strange guest, because, as he said, he was too sleepy at the time to take any particular notice of him. After learning of the express package the detectives at once telephoned to Columbus and had it intercepted. The package was opened and the stolen sacks containing the money orders, checks and other things which Ferrell desired to get rid of were found.

Chief of Detectives Kelley and Detectives O'Neill and Dundon then set to work to run down the mysterious stranger whom they had become convinced was an ex-employee of the Adams Express company. Suspicion soon rested on Ferrell and information secured in regard to his recent movements was considered sufficient to warrant his arrest. The detective first went to his boarding house and were informed that he was probably at the home of his sweetheart on the East Side. They at once went to the Costlow residence, where they found Ferrell. It was a trying duty for the detectives when they were ushered into the room where Ferrell sat conversing with the young lady. Ferrell appeared annoyed at the intrusion. The detectives did not broach the subject of the train robbery, but told him that he was suspected of a burglary and that they wished him to accompany them to the police station, where the chief of police wanted to interview him. Thinking that perhaps the detectives were on the wrong scent, Ferrell nervously and said with apparent composure: "I guess there must be some mistake." He excused himself to the young lady and accompanied the detectives to the city prison. On the way to the station the detectives told Ferrell what he was wanted for and what they knew, and he reluctantly admitted that he had committed the crime. At the police station a written confession was taken by the chief of police. Ferrell tried to keep his nerve, but he could not stand the ordeal much longer. He did not tell a connected story. Most of the facts were brought out by questions, which he seemed to answer reluctantly. Several times he broke down and he was finally led to a cell, where he was in a state of collapse. He then seemed to fully realize for the first time the awful nature of his crime and the fact that he will, in all probability, atone for it with his own life. As soon as it was learned that Ferrell had given the money to his sweetheart Inspector Barron went to the house and secured it. The young lady was utterly prostrated by the disclosures. She had not suspected Ferrell of wrongdoing, and the news was a terrible shock to her and her parents, who had regarded Ferrell as a model young man. The young lady had never doubted his story that the money which he placed in her keeping had been earned and saved by him, as he stated.

porter and a highly-respected citizen of that place. Ferrell worked for the Adams Express company at Steubenville, coming to Columbus a year and four months ago when he was given a run as messenger between Columbus and Pittsburgh. He was discharged about three months ago after three complaints had been made against him on account of broken packages. Ferrell was not able to give a very satisfactory explanation in any instance, and after the last complaint he was discharged from the service. The express company does not charge Ferrell with crookedness in any of these cases, but say that he did not give satisfactory service. It is believed that all the cash taken by Ferrell, except about $150 which he had spent, has been recovered. The amount in the hands of the police is $10,603. A bundle of money orders which Ferrell says he threw into a vault have not been recovered.

It has been determined by Ferrell's confession that the murder and robbery were committed in Union county and that he will have to be tried there. He states that he shot Lane just after the train left Milford Center and the robbery must have been committed in Union county, also as he left the train at Plain City, which is almost on the line between Union and Franklin counties.

Later Ferrell recovered his composure after eating a hearty supper and smoking a cigar.

FIGHTING MEN STARVE

BRITISH RED TAPEISM SCORED.

London, Aug. 13.—Mr. A. G. Hales, representative in South Africa of The Daily News, is the latest war correspondent to attack the methods and the red ape of the British war office. He said in part: "Let me tell you how our army in Africa is treated by the incompetent people of the good city of London. Sir Leslie Rundle has to hold a frontage line from Winburg, via Sennar, almost to the borders of Basutoland. His whole front, extending nearly a hundred miles, is constantly threatened by an active, dashing, determined enemy, an enemy which knows the country far better than an English fox-hunting squire knows the ground he hunts over season after season. To hold this vast line intact General Rundle has to march from point to point, as his scouts warn him of the movements of the tireless foe.

General Rundle's task is a colossal one, and any sane man would think that gigantic efforts would be made to keep him amply supplied with food for his soldiers. But such is not the case. The men are absolutely starving. Many of the infantrymen are so weak that they can barely stagger along under the weight of their soldierly equipment. They are worn to shadows, and move with weary, listless footsteps on the march. People high up in authority may deny this, but he who denies it sullies the truth. This is what the soldiers get to eat, what they have been getting to eat for a long time past and what they are likely to get for a long time to come unless England rouses herself and bites to the bone in regard to the people who are responsible for it:

"One pound of raw flour, which the soldiers have to cook after a hard day's march, is served out to each man every alternate day. The following day he eats one pound of biscuits. In this country there is no fuel excepting a little ox dung dried by the sun. If a soldier is lucky enough to pick up a little he can go to the nearest water, of which there is plenty, mix his cake without yeast or baking powder and make some sort of a wretched mouthful. He gets one pound of raw fresh meat daily, which nine times out of ten he cannot cook, and there his supplies end.

"What has become of the rations of rum, of sugar, of tea, of cocoa, of groceries generally? Ask at the snug little railway sidings, where the goods are stacked—and forgotten. Ask in the big stores at Cape Town and other seaport towns. Ask in your own country, where countless thousands of pounds' worth of food stuff lie rotting in the warehouses, bound up and tied down with redtape bandages. Ask, yes, ask; but don't stop at asking; damn somebody high up in power. Don't let some wretched underling be made the scapegoat of this criminal state of affairs, for the taint of this shameful things rests on you, upon every Briton whose home, privilege and prosperity is being safeguarded by these famishing men. The folks in authority will probably tell you that General Rundle and his splendid fellows are so isolated that food cannot be obtained for them. I say that is false, for recently I, in company with another correspondent, left General Rundle's camp without an escort. We made our way in the saddle, taking our two Cape carts with us to Winburg railway station; leaving our horseflesh there we took the train for East London. Then back to the junction, and down to Cape Town, where we remained for 48 hours, and then made our way back to Winburg, and from Winburg we came without escort to rejoin General Rundle at Hamonia. If two war correspondents could traverse that country and get through with winter supplies for themselves, why can't the transport people manage to do the same?"

Wheeling & Lake Erie Coal Train Goes Over a Steep Embankment, Two Injured.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 13.—At Deep Run, about four miles above this city, on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, a southbound coal train was wrecked, two men killed and two others badly injured. There were 30 cars in the train, and the wreck was caused by the tender of the locomotive jumping the track. It was followed by 22 cars, all going down a steep embankment of about 25 feet. Five cars and the caboose remained on the track.

Engineer Mike McGreavy, of Norwalk, O., jumped alighting on his head, fracturing his skull. He was taken to a boarding house in Martins Ferry, and died. He is survived by a wife and two children.

Fireman G. E. Turner, of Steubenville, jumped and received two bad cuts at the neck and shoulder. His condition is serious.

Israel Wolfe, of Steubenville, front brakeman, jumped and received internal injuries. He is painfully cut but not seriously.

JOHN F. MCKINNEY.

John F. McKinney of Piqua was a prominent lawyer in Miami county and one of the Democratic state leaders. He served two terms in congress and was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Fourth district, composed of Miami, Darke, Shelby, Logan and Campaign counties, and was elected to the Forty-second in 1870 from the same district. He was a political organizer of more than ordinary ability, and was chairman of the Democratic state committee for some years.

He was a man of great force of character, and exercised great influence in Miami county and throughout the Miami valley. He was born in Piqua, Miami county, April 12, 1827, and is living in the opening months of 1901. While always a strong partisan in his devotion to the Democratic party he was able to keep partisan sentiment within reasonable bounds during the days of the Civil war, and thus aided essentially in the rehabilitation of the organization. His counsel to his political associates was always eagerly listened to and generally followed. He was a man of powerful physique and commanding presence. He still resides at Piqua, Miami county.

WELLS A. HUTCHINS.

One of the most prominent attorneys in southern Ohio, represented Scioto county in the Fiftieth general assembly as a member of the house. He was a Democrat, but overcame a very large adverse Republican majority.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Eleventh district, Scioto, Adams, Lawrence, Gallia, Jackson and Vinton. This district was Republican by several thousand, but Mr. Hutchins overcame the adverse majority without seeming effort. He was a man of pleasing address, unusual oratorical powers, and a great lawyer and advocate. He was born in Hartford, Ohio, Oct. 8, 1818.

WILLIAM JOHNSON.

William Johnson of Richland county served a single term in the national house. He was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Eighth district, consisting of the counties of Richland, Morrow, Marion, Delaware and Union. He was born in Ireland in 1819, and died in Mansfield, Ohio, May 8, 1866.

WILLIAM E. FINCK.

William E. Finck was born at Somerset, formerly, and at that time, the county seat of Perry county, in the year 1822, and there he continued to reside during the remainder of the century, held in the highest esteem by all who knew him for his many traits of typical American citizenship. He was largely educated at St. Joseph's college, near his native town, one of the pioneer colleges of Ohio.

He was fitted by nature, as he was by education, for the legal profession, and was admitted to the bar in 1843. He was shortly afterward made prosecuting attorney of the county, by appointment, and quickly came to be recognized as a lawyer, in the lower courts and in the supreme court of the state. A most genial gentleman and an orator of unrivaled powers, he was popular to a degree but seldom attained.

He was originally a Whig in politics, attended all the Whig national conventions as a delegate from 1844 to 1852, but in 1854 left the Whig party because of the secret methods of what was popularly known as the Know

Nothings, and allied himself with the Democratic party, and was one of its ablest advocates ever after to the close of the century.

He represented the Fifteenth Senatorial district, Perry and Muskingum counties, in the Fiftieth and Fifty-fifth general assemblies, and was the Democratic candidate for attorney general and supreme judge, under the second constitution, but failed of election.

In 1862 he was elected as a Democrat to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Twelfth district, Perry, Fairfield, Pickaway, Hocking, Ross and Pike counties, and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth from the same district in 1864, and was elected to the Forty-third in 1874 from the Twelfth district.

composed of the counties of Perry, Fairfield, Pickaway and Franklin, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of H. J. Jewett. In 1850 he ran as the Whig candidate against James M. Gaylord, Democrat, in the Thirteenth district, and so great was his popularity that he came within a few votes of being elected against an immense adverse Democratic majority. In congress he took a high rank among the members, and was given a place on theiciary and other important committees of the house.

FRANCIS C. LEBLOND.

Francis C. Leblond was born in Knox county, Ohio, Feb. 14, 1821, and educated himself for a period, during which he saved sufficient money out of his earnings to take a course in the Norwalk academy. He studied law and supported himself by teaching until he was admitted to the bar in 1844, being examined in the supreme court by Edwin M. Stanton, afterward secretary of war.

His examination indicated his thorough mastery of the profession, and bespoke him the brilliant professional career which followed. He located in Celina, Mercer county, and was made prosecuting attorney and called to other important local trusts. He spent the remainder of his life in active practice at Celina, and was held in the highest esteem.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirteenth congress as a Democrat from the Fifth district, Mercer, Van Wert, Allen, Auglaize, Hardin, Hancock and Wyandot counties, and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth from the same district, and then voluntarily retired to the more congenial pursuits of life. As a congressman he displayed marked abilities.

EPHRAIM R. ECKLEY.

General Ephraim R. Eckley, a prominent citizen of Carroll county, was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, Dec. 9, 1812, and in addition to local trusts, was honored with many public positions by the voters of his county and district, and discharged all the duties imposed upon him with rare fidelity. He was a Whig, and afterward a leading Republican. In the civil war he was colonel of the Twenty-sixth O. V. I., and was made a brigadier general.

He was a member of the state senate in the Forty-second general assembly and was successively re-elected up to the Forty-ninth, and was a member of the house from Carroll county in the Fifty-first.

In 1862 he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress from the Seventeenth district, Carroll, Columbiana, Stark and Jefferson counties, and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth in 1864 and the Fortieth in 1866 from the same district. Both in the legislature and in congress he was an efficient and painstaking legislator. He served under General Rosecrans during the civil war in 1861, and under General Sheridan in 1862. He served on the common pleas bench prior to entering congress. He is living in quiet retirement at his home in Carroll county in the closing year of the century.

JOHN O'NEILL.

John O'Neill of Zanesville was among the brightest men who ever came to the bar in that section of the state, and had but few rivals anywhere as an advocate or as a profound reasoner before the courts. His oratorical powers were not only of the highest order, but had the forceful quality of concentration of thought and vividness of expression. In the heyday of his brilliant powers he could compress more eloquence and pointed statements into an address of half an hour than any man at the bar, and he seldom consumed more than that length of time in his greatest forensic efforts.

He was born in Philadelphia, December 17, 1822, removed to Frederick, Maryland, and afterward to Zanesville, where he entered the law office of Richard Stillwell, was admitted to the bar, and entered upon the practice of his profession soon after attaining his majority, and still remains one of the ornaments of the Zanesville bar, respected and trusted by all, and so continued until the close of the century.

He was elected as a Democrat to the Thirty-eighth congress in 1862 from the Thirteenth district, Muskingum, Licking, Coshocton and Knox counties, and served but a single term in congress, where he acquitted himself with great credit.

In 1863 he was elected to the Sixty-sixth general assembly as a senator from the combined Fifteenth and Sixteenth Senatorial districts, and was elected to the Sixty-seventh two years later and chosen president pro tem. at its organization.

WARSHPS COLLIDED.

Torpedo-Boat Sunk During French Maneuvers—Probably 50 Lives Were Lost.

Paris, Aug. 13.—During maneuvers of the French fleet off Cape St. Vincent a collision occurred between the first class battleship Brennus, flying the flag of Admiral Fournier, commander of the fleet, and the torpedo-boat destroyer Framme.

The Framme sank immediately. The accident was due to the fact that the Framme turned to the right when ordered to the left.

Details thus far received are very meager; but only a small portion of the crew, consisting of four officers and 58 men, were saved. It is said that no fewer than 50 were lost, and great anxiety is felt here. The Framme, which was of 313 tons' displacement, was a recent addition to the French navy.

One of Forbes' Scoops.

The following story illustrates the late Archibald Forbes' cleverness in getting his news reports in ahead of his fellow correspondents:

Here is a little scene: Time, near midnight, after a hard day's work. Everybody done up. "Hello, Jones," says Smith. "There's Forbes already asleep, like brass." "By Jove, yes," quoth Jones (incipient snore from Forbes). "It would take ten horses to wake him up. I'll turn in," says Jones. "Time enough to get our stuff off tomorrow, eh?" "Right you are," responds Smith.

In ten minutes the wearied warrior scribes are dead asleep. Forbes rises cautiously, passing out like a ghost, sits him down in a hidden corner with the stump of a tallow candle, writes like a whirlwind for a couple of hours, finishes with the last flicker of his dip, saddles a horse, off he goes helter skelter across the country, gallops for an hour, delivers his letter, gallops back, is in bed by 4, sleeps this time "like brass" and no mistake.

"Hello, lazy bones," exclaims Smith at 7 a. m., shaking the sleeper. "Time to be up, old man," adds Jones. "What are you up to?" quoth Forbes drowsily. "We are thinking of getting our stuff off." "The devil you are! Why hurry? Let's have another snooze."

stuff off and in three days discover to their bewilderment that they were 24 hours behindhand. Very provoking to Smith and Jones. But if Forbes had been the victim of the little ruse he would have been the first to laugh over it and to congratulate his successful competitor.

Couldn't See the Joke.

Once Offenbach graciously accepted the invitation of some friends to visit them in Etretat. As his hosts were waiting for him at the hotel, one of them, who was very intimate with the composer, suggested:

"Let us give him a rousing welcome."

The idea was taken up and developed. One of the party possessed a collection of old weapons. This was ransacked, and some two dozen young fellows were soon equipped as halberdiers. Another mounted a donkey and waved the flag of the club.

When Offenbach's carriage came in sight, a drum beat, the halberdiers presented arms and fireworks were set off from the balcony at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

As the composer stepped to the ground a venerable old man approached and presented to him the key of the hotel on a silver platter.

Offenbach, vain as a peacock and accustomed to all sorts of queer receptions, entirely failed to see the joke, though it was as broad as anything in "The Grand Duchess" or "La Belle Helene." He took it all seriously as a tribute to his genius, and, with tears in his eyes and in a voice that shook with emotion, he murmured:

God Will Attend to the Rest.

Wealth and scholarship are not passports into the kingdom of God. They may add a grace to the redeemed, but they are not a means of grace. The rich and cultured sinner is as vile before God as the poor woman of the streets. God is no respecter of persons. Jesus was not seeking respectable sinners to build up a respectable church. God pity the pastor who is doing that! He was seeking the lost. This is also our proper work. If we go for and bring in the lost, rich or poor, cultured or ignorant, God will attend to the rest.—Lutheran Observer.

The Unconscious Humor That Crops Out In the Green Isle.

The author of "Irish Life and Character" says truly that one has only to mix with an Irish crowd to hear many a laughable expression, quite innocently uttered. As the Duke and Duchess of York were leaving Dublin in 1897, amid enthusiastic cheering, an old woman remarked:

"Ah! Isn't it the fine reception they're gettin, goin away?"

In 1892 Dublin university celebrated its tercentenary, and crowds of visitors were attracted to the city. Two laborers, rejoiced at the general prosperity, expressed their feelings.

"Well, Tim," said one, "thim tar-cintinaries does a date for the thrade of Dublin, and no mistake."

"Oh, faix they do!" said the other. "And whin, with the blessin of God, we get home rule, sure we can have as manny of thim as we please."

An old woman, seeing a man pulling a young calf roughly along the road, exclaimed:

"Sure," said a laborer to a young lady who was urging him to send his children to school, "I'd do anything for such a sweet, gentlemanly lady as yourself."

Again, the laborers on a large estate decided that it would be more convenient for them if they could be paid every week instead of every fortnight. One of their number was sent to place their proposition before the land agent, and this was his statement:

"If you please, sir, it's me desire, and it is also every other man's desire, that we resave out fortnight's pay every week."

An exasperated sergeant, drilling a squad of recruits, called to them at last:

"Halt!" Just come over here, all of ye, and look at yourselves. It's a fine line ye're keepin, isn't it?"

After.

Willie—Pa, did Adam and Eve kick much when they was t'run out of the garden?

Pa—Well, no; not just then, but they raised Cain afterward. Now go to bed.
